This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. # Greeting

The Michiganensian of Nineteen Hundred and Twelve is before you. In it we have tried to record the events of our college life. To the many whose enthusiastic support and cooperation have made this undertaking possible, we wish to give our heartiest thanks. We realize that we have not attained perfection but the book as it now stands is finished and must go out to success or failure. If it pleases you, we are satisfied.

The University Fifty Years Ago

'Y acquaintance with the university goes back to the fall of 1857, when I was enrolled as a member of the Freshman Class.

The students numbered in all 449, of which 173 were "Medics" as we called them, the literary and medical being the only departments in existence at that time.

The students were somewhat more mature in years than at present and were more rustic in appearance, though sweaters, slickers and toques were unknown. Many of them were poor and worked their own way through college, often boarding themselves at an expense of about a dollar a week. They were an earnest and manly set of fellows, "diamonds in the rough" if you please, though the sparkle of the jewel never became visible in some cases.

There were only two Faculties numbering in all twenty men. Instructors and Assistants were a later growth, and every freshman started with a full professor in his career of study. The teachers were men of strong personality. At their head was the great President, Henry P. Tappan, who was commonly called Chancellor. A man of majestic presence, of great power as a speaker and thinker, almost idolized by the students but somewhat autocratic in his treatment of the Regents and Faculties. His impress on the life and character of the University was so strong and deep that its marks are still to be identified.

The President was generally attended by two dogs that furnished unlimited comment and were the butt of many a joke. When "Leo" died there appeared in the next mock-program of the Junior Exhibition the following epitaph:

"Poor Leo little had he thought,
His dog-days were to be so short;
Scarce had he quaffed life's bitter cup,
Death took him when he was a pup."

"Old Tap,"as we boys familiarly called him, was a born investigator. In those days it was much more common than now for strolling elocutionists, lightning calculators, and other like geniuses to show themselves before college communities. A famous performer from Barnum's Museum once appeared in Dr. Tappan's class room to give an exhibition. At the close of the performance the President questioned him about his method and expressed some solicitation in regard to his health, since he was pale and puny; whereupon the "Professor," as he called himself, assured the President that he was in excellent health and that he would gladly prove it to him if he would do him the honor to invite him to dinner. We boys could hardly suppress our amusement at this piece of impertinence, and our enjoyment of the scene was increased by seeing the man who was always so self-poised for once thrown off his balance and non-plussed. "I regret to say," remarked Dr. Tappan, after recovering himself, "that I am invited out myself today"—a philosophic subterfuge we were inclined to suspect.

Another man of that early faculty who rivalled the President in the affection of the students was Prof. George P. Williams, "Old Punky," as he was familiarly called. This name was probably given because of the dryness of his wit, and suggested by the initial of his middle name. It would take a pamphlet to narrate the stories that are attributed to this witty man.

A collection of his witticisms and jokes might well be made and should contain also a tribute to the memory of this fatherly friend and genial counsellor of the students of those days. One story must here suffice. On a review of a course in Mathematics, a student named Brown, of diminutive stature, wishing to escape the notice of the professor, placed himself behind a man of generous proportions and shrank up within himself as much as possible. After a time the professor turned sideways, remarked, "Brown, your ears show." Whereupon the man promptly presented himself to full view.

Henry P. Tappan

The Campus was an open field except for a few trees, far between, such as the one now called the "Tappan Oak," south of the Library. At a still earlier time the janitor of the buildings received as part of his salary the privilege of growing the campus with wheat, and gathered quite a harvest from his field. The only buildings on the campus were the two wings of what later became "University Hall," and the old Medical building (now to be torn down), a part of the old Chemical Laboratory, and the four houses for professors, one of which, later enlarged, still serves as the President's mansion. But I must not forget to mention another structure,—it was the Gymnasium, which stood where now are to be found the Engineering shops. This was a rough board structure with a floor of tan-bark and sawdust, and furnished with a meagre apparatus of ropes, rings, pumping bars, etc., that formerly served as a place for military exercises and the storing of muskets. When I first came here the traditions of a former military drill and a study of tactics by the students were still very vivid. Just why this military discipline was given up I never knew; but I suspect that the boys got too much fun out of it. The building was torn down in 1859 and there was no more gymnasium. College sports and activities were extremely few and simple in those days.

The open campus was our athletic field. Baseball and cricket were the favorite games, the fellows played for sport and exercise only, and there was no crowd of mere lookers-on, but every student that wished to play took part in the game. It was a simple and wholesome kind of athletics, in which there were no coaches, no gate-money, no rooters and bleachers, no betting, no bruising.

The great event of the year was the Junior Exhibition, in which picked men of the junior class displayed their powers of oratory before an admiring crowd of friends and sweethearts. This event occurred in March, at the time of the Medical Commencement, and just prior to the Spring Recess.

Another important occasion was the Annual Debate between picked men from the two literary societies, the Alpha Nu and the Adelphi. Among the rougher sports were rushing and hazing. The former consisted in contests between classes often waged on the narrow stairs in the corridors of the buildings, to see which class could crowd and force down or up the other. Hazing took the form of "ducking" freshmen under the pump, which stood behind the north wing, or putting them up a tree. There was no college paper; all announcements were made to the literary students at chapel service, and the medical students at their lectures.

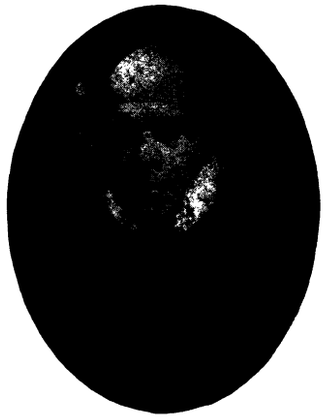
Conditions and plucks in examinations were made publicly before all the students—an added pang to the unfortunates.

The greatest disturbance of the usually quiet and even flow of the current of college life was caused by the outbreak of the Civil war in 1861. Space is lacking to do more than barely refer to this great event. The University became transformed into a camp. Men formed into companies and drilled daily on the campus. Soon came enlistments of the bravest and most heroic. The President spent more than half the hour of his class in philosophy in discussing the campaign of McClellan. The names of these brave sons of the University who gave their youthful lives to their country are to be preserved in the archives of our Alumni Association, and their memory is to be honored by a suitable monument in the Memorial Hall.



In the early period of my connection with the University as one of its teaching staff, women were first admitted. This event made a great stir in the life of the university. The sentiment of the student body was almost wholly opposed to it. The majority of the faculty were understood to be unfriendly. It was looked upon as a doubtful experiment at the best. The feeling in certain quarters may be illustrated by the following anecdote: One warm spring day in 1870, when windows and doors were wide open, a large Newfoundland dog strayed into the room of Prof. Williams. When one of the boys arose to put him out, the professor jocosely remonstrated saying, "Be careful, don't you know that the Regents have recently passed a law by virtue of which every resident of the State of Michigan is entitled to all the privileges of the University of Michigan?" But the experiment of coeducation could not have been entered upon more auspiciously. The first woman in the University, by reason of her ladylike bearing and fine scholarship, soon won her way and became one of the most popular members of her class. Not long after graduation she married a class-mate, and set an example that has since been followed by many.

But I have been expatiating upon the early days already beyond the bounds. A long memory makes a long story. I could easily make it longer if I dared.

Department of Literature, Science and Arts

JOHN OREN REED, Ph.D., Dean

The department had its origin in the original act passed by the Legislature which created the University, commonly known as the "Organic Act," passed in 1837. Owing to many complications the university was not opened until September, 1841, with two professors, a librarian and six students. The department was conducted along the conventional and traditional lines until 1852, which date marks the advent of Dr. Tappan and the passing of a new act by the Legislature granting the University much greater power. Until the year 1855-56, no electives were allowed and the degree given was A.B., but with the beginning of this year the seniors were allowed to elect one-third of their work. At this time the department gave three courses, Classical, Scientific and Latin-Scientific, which led to the degree of Bachelor of Philosophy. In 1877 the department was entirely revised, and an English course was added, giving the degree of Bachelor of Letters. The elective system had progressed so far by this time that fully one-half of the studies required for the doctor's degree were elective. In 1882-83, the university system was introduced, with the idea of producting specialization, and more truly university work, during the junior and senior years. A professorship of the Science and Art of Teaching was established in 1883, which has developed into our present teacher's course and department of education. There is also a graduate school established in connection with this department which is under the direction of the Administrative Council appointed by the President.

Department of Engineering

MORTIMER ELWYN COOLEY, M.E., LL.D., D.E., Dean

The original act of 1837 made provision for this department, but no instruction was given in engineering until 1853-54, and no degree until 1860. This was largely due to the financial condition of the University at this time, although no separate department was established, engineering work was long conducted as a sub-division of the Literary Department and was developed and controlled by that faculty until 1895. At this time the regents gave it an individual status of its own, making it co-ordinate with the other departments. Chas. E. Green, Professor of Civil Engineering, was made dean. The requirements for entrance were practically those of the Literary Department; however, more credit was demanded for graduation. In the first year 331 students matriculated, and from then on the department has had a most remarkable growth. The home of the department was the old Civil Engineering building which had earlier been the home of the president. The present Engineering building was completed in 1904, and in five years had become so inadequate that it has recently been enlarged about one-third of its former capacity. The department now includes courses leading to the degrees of M.E., E.E., Chem.E., Mar.E., Arch. and Arch.E., each possessing its own head of the department. The naval tank in the University was for some time the only one possessed by any university in the country. In 1912 the Hydraulic Laboratory, Refrigerating Plant and Wireless Station were added. The department has recently inaugurated a series of four, five and six year courses, with the corresponding degrees of B.S. in Eng. or Arch., Bachelor of Engineering and Master of Engineering, and this scheme seems to promise a satisfactory solution for the many criticisms directed against a purely technical or engineering education.

Department of Law

HENRY MOORE BATES, Ph.B., LL.B., Dean

This department was provided for in the Organic Act in March, 1859. The Law School was opened on October 8, and included three professorships, which were later styled Marshall, Kent and Jay chairs. James V. Campbell, Charles Walker and Thomas M. Cooley were elected to fill these chairs, with Professor Campbell acting as dean. The first class was graduated in 1860. The original home of the school was the old chapel, and not till October, 1863, did it have a home of its own. The building was reconstructed and greatly enlarged in 1893. Again in 1898 it was practically demolished and rebuilt as it now stands. A fourth professorship was established in 1886, and named for the Honorable Richard Fletcher, of Boston. This chair was first filled by Ashley Palmer. The fifth chair was the Tappan professorship established in 1879, first filled by Alpheus Felch. In 1871 Professor Cooley became dean of the department. The original course consisted of two terms, each six months long. lasting from October through March. The instruction was entirely by lectures, and at the completion of the course of the degree of LL.D. was given. In 1877 an entrance examination in English was required. In 1884 the terms were lengthened to nine months each, and in 1895 a third year was required for the completion of the course. The Practice Court as it now stands was established in the year 1892-1893.

Department of Medicine

VICTOR CLARENCE VAUGHAN, M.D., Ph.D., LL.D., Dean

The Department of Medicine and Surgery was brought into existence by the organization of a faculty by the University on May 15, 1850. The Department formally opened the following October with Abram Sager as president. The course consisted of lectures which extended over a period of six months, from the first of October to the last of March. Clinical instruction was furnished from the beginning, and it was for the benefit of these clinics that various efforts were made to move the department to Detroit. However, in September, 1858, the regents formally decided against the Detroit project, thus insuring a more compact and unified department. In the year 1870-71, eighteen women were enrolled in the department. By this time the need of laboratory instruction was apparent, and as a result ,in 1872 the laboratory of Histology was procured. This was followed by one for Physiology in 1884, Hygiene in 1888, and Clinical Medicine in 1891. Laboratory instruction has always been very thorough. In the same year, the new University Hospital was opened, accommodating about eighty patients. In 1880 the course was lengthened to three years, and in 1890 to four years. About the year 1890 a six-year course leading to the degrees of A.B. and M.D. was offered, and the final step has lately been taken which requires the degree of A.B. before that of M.D. can be conferred. A valuable addition to the hospitals is that of the Psychopathic Ward which the Legislature some time ago provided for. In this way the medical student is furnished with an unusual opportunity for the study of insanity and nervous disorders. The new Medical building was completed in 1903, and is a remarkably well designed and complete structure. The hospital now provides more than three hundreds beds.

Department of Dentistry

NELVILLE SOULE HOFF, D.D.S., Acting Dean

The first agitation for the creation of this department came in 1865, and in 1875 the Legislature appropriated $3000 per year, for a term of two years, with which to establish a school of dentistry at Ann Arbor, and in May of that year the regents took steps to provide for the department. Two professorships were created and first filled by Jonathan Taft and J. A. Watling. The department had its early existence under the general supervision of the Medical Department. The course consisted of two years' work, the terms being only six months long, October to March, but in the fall of '84 the terms were lengthened to nine months. In 1889 the course was finally made to consist of three years of nine months each. The degree of Doctor of Dental Surgery has always been given. The first accommodations were in the Homœopathic building, and in 1891, at the completion of the new University Hospital, the Dental Department occupied the old Hospital building. At this same time the Dental Society of the University of Michigan was organized, and assumed charge of the publishing of the Dental Journal. The new Dental building recently finished is undoubtedly the best equipped and most complete Dental building in the world, especially in Technics, Laboratories and Dental Operating Rooms. The Taft library is sheltered here and contains almost every work in Dentistry and practically complete files of every Dental journal published. The Dental museum is also included within the building, and the odontological collection is especially strong—probably the largest and best of its kind to be found in any Dental college. It contains the collections of the late Professor Ford and of Dr. William Mitchell of London, England. The museum has been named the Ford-Mitchell museum.

Department of Pharmacy

JULIUS OTTO SCHLOTTERBECK, Ph.C., Ph.D., Dean

The school was organized and made independent of any other department in the year 1876-7. Before that time a course in Pharmacy had been given in the Chemistry building under the general supervision of the chemical faculty. The requirements demanded for admission were in general a full and complete High School education. At the present time they vary, depending on whether the student is a candidate for the degree of Pharmaceutical Chemist, which is a two-year course, or whether he is candidate for the B.S. of Pharmacy, in which case the requisites are practically those for the B.S. degree in any other department. In 1880 the Chemistry laboratory was completed, and this was used as the home of the department up to 1910. With the completion of the new Chemistry and Pharmacy building the school has moved into new and commodious quarters with splendid facilities for special work. Practical work is obtained from the botanical gardens, where the principal plants for medicinal use are grown and studied. Frederick Starns and Co., Detroit, offer a fellowship of $350 a year, which has been maintained since 1895. Appointment is made by the Board of regents upon recommendation of the Faculty.

Department of Homeopathy

WILBERT B. HINSDALE, M.S., A.M., M.D., Dean

The first petition for this department came to the Legislature in 1851, and in 1855 they required that the University should support a professorship of Homeopathy. In April 1875 the Legislature made an appropriation of $6,000 a year for the organization and maintenance of a school of Homeopathy at the University. This the regents organized the following fall, starting it with two professors, and provided that it should conform to the rules of the University proper. The attendance fluctuated greatly, starting in 1876 with 24. From that time till 1895 there was more or less dissatisfaction expressed concerning the school. In the summer of 1895 it was completely reorganized, with a new faculty, since which time it has enjoyed a prosperous existence. It now has very commodious quarters and the new Homeopathic Hospital in the immediate vicinity of the campus is especially well equipped and one of the finest structures connected with the University. A special feature of this department is the Pathogenetic Laboratory which is especially well adapted for experimental work. In connection with the Hospital there are two nurses' homes under the charge of an experienced Principal. The term of study extends through three years at the end of which time a certificate of graduation is given.

History of the 1912 Lits

SOMEONE had to be the first to swing off a day coach back in that memorial fall of 1908, and once off, to muggle a tiresome, carpet-bag beladen and be-weighted way up that dusty north end of State, which connects the campus with the gray stone depot; someone had to be the first to mistake the High School for the University, Ferry Field for the Registrar's Office, Eta Bita sorority for the Ceeler Klub; someone had to be the original goat, the banter of the sophisticated, the laughing stock of the pioneer. Who that first martyr was is immaterial, we take it. We all had to climb that same dusty hill; subject ourselves to the same sympathetic stares of the initiated; mutually feel the fading of Alverno Corners High School honors into the dusk from which there is no return. In which manner did the Class of '12 knock on the University door; to gain admittance; and humbly begin its existence in the midst of a new-found but ignoring brethren.

Into the second canto with an air interrogative. Breathes there a man with—who remembers not, the temper of those first October nights in Ann Arbor Town when summarily entered into from the shelter of a warm bed; who recollects not the barbaric yell of the Naughty Elevens, the fragrance of Elmer's With or Withouts, the taste of garlic, the slap of paint-brush on cringing cuticle, the "before breakfast" swim in the Commodore Peary Ocean once sweeping the shores of College Inn? Continuing, who still cannot yet see in mind's eye, Old Medic Green, all peaceful like and quiet under the moon one moment, and the next, vibrant with the rattle and screech and scream of the Last Night Rush, as those same Naughty Elevens flung their proudest legions to oblivion on the '12 phalanx, while out and above the smoke of the conflict waved, unmolested, the conqueror's ensign? Protestingly, Proud Memory out of the buried past seems to whisper, "Thou coulds't not have me thus so fickle!"

"Positive law," saith the disciples of Blackstonian Art, "manifests itself in positive duties and rights, and starts with the conception of society." So did the Class of '12 assemble within the tabernacle of the Four Red Walls, to listen to the oratory of the office-seekers, the sob of the constitution builders, the advice of Elders. Out of the jargon boomed continually the voice of one Joe Ink, Politician Extraordinary, of Canton, the City of Presidents. Soon did the City of Presidents hang up another scroll in its Hall of Illustrious Sons.

Small was the excitement in the closing months of the Reign of Ink. The baseball team of Mitchell won many battles—on paper. The track team took the dust of one Horner-Craig combination. The basketball team elected a captain. Naughty Eleven ruled the Huron love-feast. Notwithstanding, yet, and however, the Girls' Basketball team scored a touchdown; Clinton Sears won some numerals; the Cap-fire lacked not for fuel; the brethren withstood the professorial attack in June with fortitude; and, in elegiac phraseology, the gray stone depot witnessed '12's initial departure with unfeigning sadness.

After all, you can have but one "Frosh" year. When you're a soph, you're "growed up"; you own the town; you are no longer amenable to advice or discipline; the world steps off into the street, while you take the sidewalk. Beating the class below in the fall, when the faculty decrees a game of parlor tennis by advocating three poles instead of one, isn't worth while. In the spring—well that's different. Then you need the exercise, the play is keener, and the trick is turned as a matter of course. As far as bothering with administration perplexities, no use at all, with McCormick wielding the gavel. All of which goes to show that even sophomores can of occasion show flashes of judgment.

Constitutionally conceded and traditionally recorded, 1912's Junior year was on the crest of the wave, same as all Junior years are—or should be. To steal the simile once used by a professor of law in addressing a mass meeting, the rest of our college years measure up to that Junior year "like foam on a good glass of beer." One Moehlman, of the Siamese twin corporation, enlivened the opening days by running for the estimable position of Barker for the Big Show. However, too many of Art's supporters failed to brave a rainy day election, and Genial Bob McKisson trotted into the cook-shanty with the Bacon. Whereupon, the peace pipe did pass among all the brethren, the dark of battle sought more congenial surroundings, and Barbour Gym became the center of peaceful though constant invasion.

Assuming that some of you are what our friends, the sport scribes—please to term "bugs" you must still have visions of the way '12's diamond artists mowed down the enemy in the spring of '12. South Ferry is still echoing with the sound of '12's championship bats, and the wood-owl sings mournfully, of evenings, over the biers of '12's departed contemporaries. But enuf! You shall not call us braggarts!

Thanks to Father Time and a thoughtful wisp of wind through an open window—the page is over. Into the concluding chapter with an air not interrogative or effervescent, but distinctly demure and tinged with the melancholy usually attributable to Courters of the Muse only. Intuition proclaims that somewhere in the immediate foreground, the grinning idiotic facsimile face of the office-boy blends nobly in with his rasping yell of "Cawpy." Your scribe must hurry. So with apologies to Artie Lane, some photo-plays in the fast fading light. Old Tappan for the starter. No Insurgents in the ranks of '12! We're off on the last lap as we were off on the first—in unbroken, unshattered array, our own President—Capital P - - - Allison, leading the way toward the wire. How fast the time drifts when you are drifting! Autumnal foliage has given way to the white of Winter and Spring in the same instant is throwing the shade of bursting buds on the receptive canvas. Somewhere out from under the trees, a long somber line of black-robed men and women winds forth in the last journey on beloved campus trails. The scene changes—'tis night—a fire fed by a one-time fence throws flickerings on the silver of a stream somewhere below. Zish! Not a word! If you are unwary, question not but that you will interrupt the Stein Committee in its belated deliberations with Bacchus.

"Cawpy" again simpers up over the dusty transom. But one picture yet lingers sacredly on the screen. It depicts of that future time when '12, rightly proud of those Achievements-to-be out in the Big Busy World, will return to once again do homage to Michigan,—Utopia realized in myriads of memories.

Senior Literary Statistics

AFTER carefully compiling the statistics of the Senior Lit. class, the author of this article is convinced that the student council did the correct thing in not instituting the referendum. When ten vote for Jimmie McLaughlin as the handsomest man in the class and twenty-two claim that Jack Clarkson is the best student, we feel sure that these people are not capable of even discussing the question, "Shall Michigan return to the Conference." Another argument against the referendum as shown by the senior records is the fact that a large number of students will not think for themselves. In answer to the question, "How did you come to graduate?" thirty-one wrote that they came by the Michigan Central. Nineteen girls claim that the most promising person is the editor of the Student Directory. It can be plainly seen that corrupt voting has a firm footing on the campus.

It was a laborious task going over the records. In so doing we learned to sympathize with the editor of the Gargoyle. Reading jokes is amusing and interesting, but when the same jokes are repeated time and time again the feeling of amusement changes to one of resignation. We have not however allowed this feeling to influence us in the compilation of these statistics. Each ballot was considered and if your name does not appear in this article it is not the fault of the MICHIGANENSIAN, but of your friends and enemies in the Senior Lit. Class.

Some of the students in the University who live south of the Mason and Dixon line have spoken of the wonderful beauty of the southern women. Such remarks have generally been received only by those who have recently been turned down by some Queen of the North. At last the South has come into its own. A sufficient number of Senior Lits. have been won over to the southern style of beauty to elect Mary Bonner the prettiest girl of the class. The unusual complexion and the brand of hair worn by Marie Steketee won second place for the north.

To that Immaculate, Beau Brummel of the campus, Mack Ryan is given the honor of possessing the most beautiful facial lineaments. It is not presumed that the selection was made from an esthetic standpoint or with the approbation of "Fine Artie," but the vote will stand as a colossal monument to the sense of humor of the Senior Lit. class. To the cherubic rotund countenance of Rufus Siple is affixed the misfortune of being less handsome than the victor.

By the copious use of infantile exhibitions, calculated to amuse, Bert Watkins has made friends with all his audiences and consequently made himself the most popular man in the class. Even though President Allison received the majority of the feminine vote he must be contented with second place. Lucile Stowe lost the popularity contest to Lila Tubbs, but was successful in defeating Jane Quirk for the place of jolliest girl.

It has been generally admitted that the institution of fussing has become more universally established at Michigan in the last few years and no one has contributed more to its growth than Jack Clarkson. The unfortunate failing of this attractive young man will probably enmesh him in the toils of matrimony soon if the opinion of the class is correct. The notion of the class in regard to the first girl to take this step has been prejudiced by the engagement column of the Michigan Daily. Hazel Wolcott received an overwhelming majority in the vote for "First girl to get married."

Small and insignificant of body, but large and powerful intellectually, Edward Kemp has been conceded the Solomon of the 1912 Lits. Claire Hughes ran well, but his votes were deposited before the law reports were out. Strange as it may seem, very few thought of our fair "co-eds" as being unusually studious. Mary Bonner may, however, feel complimented.

Professors Van Tyne and Smalley still hold their popularity of last year with Professor Rankin gaining on them rapidly. Very few voted for the subjects taught by these members of the faculty as the "snaps." The "snap" honors were generously accorded to Sociology 19 and Diction and Usage.

The south received first place again when Harry Smith was recognized the worst Knocker. By the time that this book is printed the cold weather will be over and the slush gone and we hope that Harry's better disposition will again show itself. Several members of the class, forgetting that Frank Murphy had left the Lit. department, tried to give him this position, but he was declared ineligible.

Our two "M" men fought each other hard for the position of best athlete. Counting and recounting failed to show even a slight majority for either Ed Hanavan or Tom Bogle. The manly figure and wonderful locks of Thomas secured for him the vote of the girls, but the men looked farther into the future and saw Eddie crossing the tape in the East.

The school of politics offers as its graduates Elmer Grierson, our president, and Earl Good. The former two have always been found at the pools and never behind the "also rans." The limited field of class politics was too small for Chub, however; and those who followed his campaign for varsity baseball manager claim that he is the acme of politicians.

The readers of the Gargoyle will be greatly surprised to learn that Cork Riordan has been classed as a humorist. By what method of reasoning this deduction was reached is a profound mystery. It was also ascertained by the vote that our friend from the suburb of Cork has mastered the elusive art of successful bluffing.

Earl Moore and Edward Kemp are doomed to a life of success—Earl to smash pleasing melodies out of a wheezing pipe organ, and Ed to charm his attentive hearers with flowery metaphor and hyperbole.

In answer to the query, "What is the best thing in Ann Arbor," the replies ranged all the way from "The tall straight ones at Freddies" to "Watching the steam boats on the Huron." Other would-be-wags answered, "She graduated" and "Sleep." Naturally the street railway system and the water supply came in for a great deal of comment.

It was seriously asserted by the large majority of the class that President Emeritus Angell was the individual most worthy of envy, a sentiment which, we believe, is unanimously concurred in by all students of the University. J. L. C.

History of the 1912 Engineers

E enrolled in the fall of 1908, coming from all parts of the country, many of us direct from High School. and some with the advantage of several year's worldly experience, but we were soon to be allied by that spirit of goodfellowship which has manifested itself continuously in the Engineering Class of 1912.

It was evident from the keen interest shown at our first class meeting that an active class was being organized. Tommy Doran and Lou Gilbertson opposed each other for the presidency. The latter by his silver tongued oratory was able to corral a few more votes than Tommy.

We enjoyed the distinction of being the last Freshman class to participate in the good old "Night Rush." We won the "Pole Rush" proper but at the end of the half hour, when "Germany" Schultz had given the final signal, we were shown a merry time by the "Sophs"—in the rush improper.

Our class athletics started with "lots of pep." With Harry Bissell as manager and Guy Jensen as captain we won our basketball numerals. As a fitting climax to the year we captured the championship of the campus in baseball through the stellar work of Captain Borleske, and the consistent pitching of "Doc" Cooke, combined with the fine backing of the whole team. Class dances and smokers brought us into more intimate association and formed friendships which have cemented the members into a unit.

The Sophomore year was a continuation of the success of our first year. "Nels" Boice and L. M. MacLeod contested for the class leadership, "Mac" winning by a few votes. The "Fresh-Soph" rush which had degenerated into an afternoon "pink tea" did not arouse much interest and very little hazing resulted.

Our Junior year brought forth additional evidence that our class included many shrewd politicians. The main contest between Joe Burge and Harry Steinhauser for president resulted in a clean, friendly fight. Harry won and certainly proved conclusively that he was a leader. Much credit is due him for the way he handled the class.

The reputation for unity and class spirit, which we had gained in our first year, was greatly increased with each succeeding year. Class dinners at the Union were substituted for the smokers previously given. These dinners were very well attended, and, due to the energetic manner in which Joe Burge handled them, they continued to gain in popularity, until this year, still guided by Joe, they have set a record at the Union for attendance.

The Junior year brought with it the much talked of S. & R. course and expectedly, yet regrettably, dropped many by the wayside. In our first student council election, Jerry Collins was the one honored. In our other student council elections Burge, Van Dyke, Steinhauser and Trix were elected.

We were well represented on the Musical Clubs by "Chic" Hoover," "Jerve" Webb and Burleigh Jacobs, all of whom served for three years.

This year in campus politics the class was distinguished by having three of its members on the board of directors of the Athletic Association; Learmonth, football manager, president of the Board, and member of the Board of Control; Smith, financial secretary; Hannon, treasurer.

Stan Borleske brought the athletic honors to the class this year by winning his "M" in both football and baseball. He would have done so the year before had he not received a serious injury early in the season.

Toward the end of the year "Chic" Hoover was greatly honored by being made Editor-in-Chief of the MICHIGANENSIAN.

At the end of the Junior year the civils under Prof. Johnson enjoyed the rough life of summer camp in the wilds of northern Michigan and while there received the unwelcome news of the resignation of Gardner S. Williams from the head of the department. Meanwhile many other members of the class enjoyed "pleasure trips" up the Huron and for diversion did a little studying at odd times.

In the fall of the senior year many returned early, some to waste a few blue books, others because of a desire to be in Ann Arbor. Jerry Collins was among the early arrivals and aided materially in securing a chapter house for Tau Beta Pi. He also succeeded in putting the Engineering Society on its feet.

A fine political battle was started as soon as school opened and it seemed that every member turned politician—pulling either for Gage Cooper, or for Francis Letchfield. The Civils were defeated by a few votes.

Again the athletic ability of the class was demonstrated by the 1912 Engineering Football Team, which won the championship of the campus. This was due to the good work of the team under the careful guidance of Manager Rickershauser and Captain Kitson.

The end of the first semester found many of the Civils severely jolted by the faculty axe, which swung heavily on many good students as well as those of ordinary ability. Regardless of this slaughter the final roll call will be a large one due perhaps to many changing to the B.S. in E. course and many others carrying an extra quota of hours.

The four years at Michigan have indeed been spent pleasurably. The class dances at Granger's, the smokers and dinners at the Union and even the hours spent in the class room will bring many happy remembrances. C. W. H.

Senior Engineering Statistics

HINK to commune, some day when Time drags wearily, with our friends, the campus squirrels, concerning the memorable winter of 1911-12, and therein will you find the hope holden for the bit of verse later perpetrated—the hope that these statistics to be related will linger as long in the memories of the E class of '12, as that long, encroaching-on-eternity winter of 1911-12 must linger in the memories of our four-footed chums. Thus for the hope. Still clinging to such a thread—even is savoring on the astral—and with apologies to Tommie Lovell—

The snow, the snow, the beautiful snow,
Filling the Heavens and Earth below,
All over the Campus, don't you know,
Just like us Seniors, even so.

As vital statistics go to show,
Big men of the class, wherever they go,
We, the following, do wish to bestow,
To cover our sins like the beautiful snow.

Who, other than the class politician, is better versed in the mode of procedure for conducting an election? We were confronted with the terrifying dilemma that two members of the class laid claim to the office. The difficulty was surmounted only through the happy ruling that H. Dorothy Wines was ineligible because, being a femme sole had the right to contract only with respect to his separate estate. To Job Urge, consequently went the contract for calling the necessary election.

As a thunderbolt from a clear sky, came the news that Tom Dor Ran said he had decided to graduate. The Secretary was herewith instructed to cast a unanimous ballot for Tom as class humorist. The best efforts of Carlyle Flee-on-her, an "also ran," brought forth only a few sighs.

Due to his unprecedented success in calling and conducting elections the class thought it wise to turn over to Job Urge the work pertaining to all such elections and as a consequence it devolved upon him to compile the complete statistics for the class. It is from his memoirs on the subject that we have gleaned the following interesting and suggestive thoughts.

To Her B. Tricks fell the much coveted honor of being chosen as the most popular man in the class.

Amid much applause and without a single dissenting voice Mrs. Green was chosen as the most popular girl in the class. Were it not for her, was the sentiment of the boys, many of us might have been "conned out" at the end of our first semester.

Quoting again from "Memoirs" we find this most interesting citation, "The election of the most persistent fusser in the class brought on one of the most spirited battles of the hour. Our fair neighbors from the adjoining city seemed to be very determined that none other than Lawrence Sidney should be raised to this rank, and were it not for the noble efforts of home girls fighting with great vim for Clay T. Homas, he would surely have carried away the office. As it was the two factors so divided the vote of the majority, that the Sorosis in the minority, succeeded in stampeding John Aughty to a victory."

A great wave of undecision struck the class when it came time to choose the jolliest girl. But good fortune seemed to guide our footsteps when we decided to leave the matter entirely in the hands of Ed Will Guss. Our trust proved soundly placed for Ed picked the telephone operator.

Except for the notoriety of the affair Gage C. Hooper feels quite elated over his victory in the contest for the handsomest man in the class in a close race against Cherry C'Ollins. It is said, however that had it not been for Abe Clinker's able management of the Hooper campaign, the C'Ollins machine would have elected their man.

Defeat does indeed, come hard to many, yet the sting of a loss is not half so lasting as the joy of victory. To Chast Ackles we offer condolences, while to Jacking Hen we extend our warmest congratulations, as here we have the loser and winner respectively in the race for the prettiest girl position. We are sorry to tell you Chast, that had you not been so unfortunate to meet with disaster in the shape of Geoban Croft, who gave away the secret, while purchasing that Pompeiian Cream at Quarry's, the returns would have shown a different result.

"Memoirs" gives us this, "Never in the history of the University has there been such a class in the engineering department as that of 1912 from a scholastic standpoint. The stars and lights are so numerous that it is only after much thought, more than it would take the w.k.-l.l.l.d. F. Fischer to prepare a speech for a class dinner, that it has been possible to award to three men jointly the position of best student. The most fortunate three are Abnorris, Litch and Field. It is because of these men's wisdom in not officially entering the race that they were victorious.

It was on February 30 in the all around championship meet that the class was surprised and pleased to see the quality of athletes which it had developed during its four years. It is needless to say that the showing made was far beyond expectations and the margins separating the leaders were of the smallest. The summary by points shows Stanbor Leski first with 828; Chas. Kynotrun, second, 823; Hardon Bill, third, 800.

Though kept a secret for many weeks, because we did not care to have the instructors find out his real worth, we are at last forced to disclose the fact that E. K. Heart has been voted the most successful bluffer in the class. Eminent men throughout the department, however, are settled as to this score, and therefore there remains little doubt in our minds as to the wisdom of the choice.

To him of basketball fame has been offered the selection as the most promising youth of the class, Bob Rowlie. Just the reverse to Bob, we have placed Chas. Ricketshouse as the most hopeless. If it were not for the fact that Charles refuses to shave even when he expects to have his picture taken, we could not have unqualifiedly given him the choice.

The Engineering Department owing to its lack of available material, is not conducive to promoting matrimony, yet nevertheless, numerous of the class are running a heated race as to which one will be the first to get married. Burleigh J. Cobbs being the only popular girl in the class, is of course permitted to marry at once. Among the other spirited contestants we have Morley Showman, Duffey, Blood, Webb, Brown, and Degavarian.

To depart from the seeming sarcastic strain which has seemed to so far permeate this writing let us deal seriously with the question of snap courses in the Engineering Department. It is a well known fact that the boys like to take things easy their senior years and rest on their laurels, and one manner of doing this is to choose a few snap courses for the finishing work. It has been noted that there is a majority of Seniors in the work conducted by Professors Greene and Ellis in the Civil branch, so we only naturally concluded that these are the "snap" subjects. If we have erred in our judgment we would deeply appreciate any enlightenment. As usual the favorite professor is "Andy" who takes the whole class by storm, so overwhelming is the vote.

Camp Davis

EXCEPT for the Wops or "Hunkies" who went up early to do the manual labor incident to the opening of the camp, most of us arrived on the Saturday before the camp officially started. We who went by train arrived in Pellston early in the morning. After taking one look at that large metropolis we started at once on a hunt for a buggy or other means for making a fast getaway from the town. When we left the one street of town and saw the stretch of sand that led over the Big Hill to the Camp, six miles away, we repented our haste. The man who started this "See America First" was not thinking of the country about Camp Davis when he coined the phrase. We drove for a couple of hours through a wilderness of charred stumps and finally reached Camp. After eating we set to work putting up the tents for the more aristocratic members who had chosen to come up by boat. When they arrived at about four o'clock we, with the condescension of old frontiersmen, listened to the tale of their trip from civilization. They told of the boat sailing into Cheboygan on a high tide of rain and how they had all brought slickers and sou'westers to prepare for their eight weeks immersion into solitude. After buying out a few lunchrooms they went to one Houck's livery stable and persuaded him to arouse some nags and connect them to a couple of chariots. We heard, too of how their "interest in their work" had impelled them to hastily place their baggage in the conveyances and start precipitously for Camp. They reported much the same country as that through which we had passed, its main features being charred stumps, slab shacks, sandy roads, and here and there a tall dead pine, left by the old lumber kings as a "monument to civilization." After repairing one of the barouches a few times with sundry pieces of cord they began to fear that the stress due to the eighteen mile drive would run beyond the elastic limit—that the droski would fail under the strain. From the top of the hill two miles away they had "discovered" Camp and had greeted it with huzzahs. They told of taking unwittingly the forbidden road through "Bug Camp" and of being startled by the sight of two dope-besmeared near-humans, whom we later informed them were only "guinea" Bugs, and hence harmless.

Then the gang being all here, we donned our dress-suits and prepared our straw Ostermoors for the oncoming eve. Scarcely was this done when we better trained scouts heard the distant hum of an approaching army of mosquitoes. Those who rushed first for mosquito-netting got mosquito-netting but those who delayed got mosquitoes,—mosquitoes the whole night through.

Sunday was a day of rest and was enjoyed as such to its fullest extent. The day being clear some of the boys tried to acquire a coat of tan too quickly with the usual result of sunburnt arms and shoulders.

Camp really started with roll-call at 6:20 Monday morning and Burleigh Jacobs sprang into prominence by failing to appear. Most of the boys were formed into a Village Improvement Society and set to work trimming the lawns and manicuring the hedges along State Street. One husky party was detailed to go to Jarmen's and bource the bevy of boats from the barn to the bay and row them two long hand-blistered miles to Camp.

The work began in earnest on Tuesday morning when the "assignments as posted were approved." About all that we learned the first week was how to dress for the nature of the work that we were doing. Much independent research work was done in trying to discover upon which side to sleep when both shoulders were sunburnt. The chief event of the week was the rescue, alone and unassisted, by "Petey" Van Dyke of an entire party which he chanced to believe was lost—on the Base Line. Saturday of this week was notable in that nearly all remained in Camp for the week-end. By way of excitement though we rowed around to Bryant's and produced a small May Festival for the edification of the guests at the hotel. On this day too our Sub-Faculty arrived; "Harry" Bouchard, "Schimmy" Schamehorn, "Stub" Hale, and "Pa" Daniells.

Sunday morning,—no roll-call. Query: Why is breakfast at 6:30? Inspection, which however was not relaxed on Sundays, showed that the truants of Party 5 had arrived, bringing with them the remainder of the Scrub-Faculty (the "r" is silent as in idea) namely "Roy" Mattern.

Another uneventful day of labor and then the Fourth. Did we celebrate? Yea, Bo! from Topinabee to Mackinaw City and from Cheboygan to Petoskey, distributed widely over the Land of the Mid-Day Sun. We had grown web-feet by this time and could travel rapidly over the loose sand. The largest party walked nine miles to visit the fair summer-resorters at Topinabee. There was to be a dance that night and most of the boys stayed over intending to return to Camp by way of Indian River and Burt Lake. Oh how they enjoyed the evening, now and then thinking with pity of those two poor souls who had been so foolish as to prefer a long hike over the sandy road to a pleasant evening and a moonlight launch ride back to Camp. Due to sudden Nor'easternly winds however, the good ship could not leave port,—and though nine miles is only nine miles even after the moon has set, it certainly seems longer.

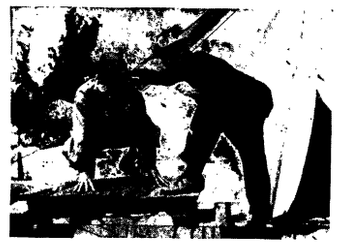
By way of harbor improvements a large dock and breakwater was built the next Saturday. About this time too Burleigh Jacobs returned to our midst bringing with him Party 6, "Spain" Hileman.

The next Saturday we went to Topinabee intending to play ball but rain prevented the game. We split up then, some going to Cheboygan and some remaining in Topinabee for a dance. Next morning at breakfast one of our number was greeted by these words in a feminine voice, "Why, Lawrence, I didn't know that you were here!" The surprise and discomfiture of said Lawrence was great. He left immediately and hunted up a launch to take the party back to Camp. The others who had gone to Cheboygan visited Mackinac Island and returned to Camp by way of Pellston. The feature of the trip was the chariot race from Pellston to Bryants. The charioteers being "Ben Hur" Oelkers and "Messala" McLeod it is not necessary to add that the race was close and exciting.

The "morning after" Eddie Wilgus won the admiration of the faculty by his excellent marksmanship with a heliotrope, hitting a stump a few feet in front of him instead of the tower which was distant some few miles. On this same date "Dutch" Nelson's imitation of asleep at the switch won honorable mention.

On the next Saturday we went to Topinabee again to play Birchwood Lodge. The score we are not mentioning. The comedy element of the trip was furnished by the "Dutch Quartette" whose members had trimmed their four weeks hirsute growth à la Pretzel. Esau, the Monk was also a member of the comedy troupe. After dinner we held a little sing on the pier and then attended a dance. When we were ready to start for Camp we found that the teamsters were not present. After freezing a short time in the open we adjourned to a neighboring hay-loft where we held a very pleasant soirée. Finally those drivers arrived and we started for Camp reaching there just after the sun did.



Having now been in Camp about a month some of the more fastidious decided to run a series of experiments with the washing machine. The remarkable discovery was made, that by soaking the clothes for a few days they were rendered much more pliable.

We had begun to tire of our little spring-board by this time so we built a diving tower, under the supervision of "Toby" Tobias, Insulting Engineer.

At the next week-end quite a number of the boys journeyed to the south and discovered Petoskey and the dances at the Arlington Hotel.

The elite of Ingleside held an Ice Cream Social and Dance the following Friday and many of the boys attended. The dance floor and the vegetable floor-wax aroused our interest although they did not win our approval. The next day we played a ball game the score of which we will mention. Jarmen's back lot, known as Riggsville was the scene of the defeat of the team from Wanda, alleged champions of Emmett County; score,—10-2. Battery tricks of past decades coupled with almost errorless ball served to win the game for Camp Davis.

The social season was now well under way, the next notable functions being a formal dance at Ingleside and a hoe-down at Bryant's. The latter was by the far the better liked, pink lemonade having been served by the proprietor.

Aside from these events there was a continuous round of sings and glee club concerts either on the lake or around camp fires on the beach. For quite a time a mixture of indoor baseball and football was played every evening after dinner.

Our noble Scotchman "MacTavish" Steinhauser organized and was a strong candidate for the presidency of the Camp Davis Golf Club. "Finninhaddie" Wälgus, "Hoot Mon" Mudge and "Glengarry" Oelkers took a strong interest in the Club and personally laid out the nine-hole course which extended the full length of State Street. Though the Club was organized late in the season, the sport proved a very popular one, although rather dangerous to the innocent bystander who at any time stood a good chance of receiving a healthy (?) clout with a rough-hewn hemlock golf ball, unless he promptly heeded the warning cry of "F-o-r-e!"

Some of the real work that we did was the building of a tower at Station 11 and the establishment of two new triangulation stations on the shore of Burt Lake. The main line of the Douglas Lake Branch of the P. & C. R. R. was extended a few miles and for the purpose of opening up the Big Springs as a summer resort a new branch called the Spring Valley Branch was laid out. Soundings were made of Douglas Lake between Grapevine Point and the Island. The land survey work was continued and two or three sections of the surrounding country were surveyed and mapped.

But everything must draw to an end and as our life in Camp was pleasant so too was the ending pleasant. We were to break camp Friday noon and we had obtained a dispensation to delay taps on Thursday night for as long as we should wish. The nearby hillsides were scoured for wood and we prepared a crematory for our celebration of the First Annual Sock Night. Shortly after dark the call "Yea Bo" brought forth all of the faithful and when the match was applied, every soul in camp was gathered in that long to be remembered circle. The program began with an announcement of the results of our "Senior Blanks":

Handsomest Man: Deadlock, one vote each.

Prettiest Girl: "La Belle Fatima" Renz.

Most Congenial Cuss: "Salome" Sloan.

Keeper of the Official Camp Calendar: "Russ" Hunt.

Most Graceful Diver: McLeod, the Diving Venus.

Prime Fussers: "Walt" Willits and "Stub" Hale.

One-Letter-a-day Man: "Dutch" Eckert. Best Heliotrope Man: "Eddie" Wilgus.

President of the Golf Club: "Buckskin" Bradley. Baseball Manager: "Eva" Mudge.

Best (and only) Umpire: "Petey" Van Dyke.

Camp Mystery: "Who ran fastest when the Bell rang?

Camp Cry: Wot Ho? Aye Ho! Yea Bo!

Favorite Dish: Apple Sauce.

Musical numbers then followed interspersed with short speeches and finally the time had come for the ceremony of the Transmutation of the Socks. Each party in turn danced around the fire and with the proper incantations cast into the flames his offering of Holy Holeproofs. A short vaudeville program varying from barnyard and menagerie stunts to echoes from the Midway then followed. Finally the singing of the Yellow and Blue officially closed the last evening in Camp.

Loath were we to leave this place of happy memories where so many fond friendships were formed. Not a man left camp but with the knowledge that he would always think with longing of this play in which he never again would take a part.

History of the 1912 Law Class

HILE, as the poet tells us, "Many a flower is born to blush unseen, etc., more of them are born to adorn some débutante at the J. Hop, or, more modest, some blushing lass at a Law Social Dance, or possibly to carry their message of love to some maiden in Ypsi. Men come and men go; and thus accumulates the ever increasing task of the small boy who, it is ordained, must learn this great world's history. Law classes come, tarry and go; and this is the excuse we offer for this chronicle of the noble men and noteworthy deeds of the Law Class of 1912. For it can be said without fear of successful contradiction that never before was, and possibly never again will be, such a body of talented men merged into a corporate entity as were those who sacrificed their joint and several existences for the welfare of this illustrious class of 1912.

From all of the winds of heaven came the stalwart young knights in quest of legal lore. For a week or more, during the ideal autumnal weather of 1909, they journeyed into the Mecca of Jurisprudence to pay homage to the patriarchal saints, Coke, Littleton, Blackstone and Cooley. Their purpose was plain; their aim was single. Three years were they to sojourn here. And, after the said three years had passed, elapsed, transpired and gone, never again would the supreme court have to reverse itself; for then there would be some three hundred brilliant barristers well able to distinguish the holdings, if only seasonably informed of the desired verdict.

After the mysteries of matriculation and enrollment had been more or less successfully solved, our legal career had begun. A few of us had almost accustomed ourselves to the delightful routine of Blackstone, boarding-house and bed, when Professor Goddard called a meeting of the Freshman Class. After a few words of fatherly advice, a vivid and exhaustive exposition of the functions and kindly offices of the Attendance Committee, and covenants of further assurance, he requested nominations for class officers. Out of the four hundred freshmen present, three hundred and ninety-nine rose to their feet to extol the virtues of some fellow classman who would be willing to sacrifice himself on the alter of service for the welfare of "1912." Never had so great a flood of oratory been turned loose in so brief a time. Even Professor Trueblood was so overcome that he had to ask for a leave of absence. When the smoke of the ensuing campaign had cleared away, it was ascertained by those who understood the intricacies of the Freshman ballot slip that Norman W. Reed had been chosen for the high and exalted office of Class President. The effect of this pernicious campaign, however, has ever since continued to manifest itself; it so thoroughly corrupted and polluted Adrian L. Hoover that he has continued to be the personification of criminality to this day.

Shortly after election, a general assembly and smoker was held at the Michigan Union. But this was not enough; we must have more of sociability. So a banquet was agreed upon to be held at Whitmore Lake. Captain Sealby took the helm in the post-prandial flood of good cheer, and those two venerable friends of all students, Professors Knowlton and Bunker, accompanied us on this cruise as guests of honor. Thus did we gradually become acquainted with the faculty. So amicable did these relations become that "Cuppy" Kreuzberger voluntarily translated for the benefit of Professor Knowlton those two troublesome

Latin terms, "fructus naturales" and "fructus industriales," explaining their origin meanwhile.

We regret to chronicle here, that owing to the persistence of the faculty, we were given examinations from which a serious breach arose between the faculty and several members of our class. They simply would not stay. However, there remained a majority of us who did not have to have our eyes treated, and who were not summoned home to help father in the bank. So we survivors tearfully laid away our Blackstones, text-books we had compiled in Criminal Law, and voluminous notes on digested cases of diverse and sundry character. After this first semester's initiation we were ready to undertake anything,—and we did. It came in the form of Real Property. After delving into the various parts of the Statute of 23 Moses, c. 9, we mounted into the mists of later day legislation and decision and by the application of the same, we experienced little difficulty in passing examinations, which, to the uninitiated, might appear somewhat intricate. And thus ended the first year, and, behold, it was vacation.

A few recruits joined us at the beginning of our Junior year; but our number had been materially diminished. Death had removed two of us, L. F. Ferrier, of Ginter, Pennsylvania, and Noah C. Perkins, of Austin, Texas. Those of us fortunate enough to have known these men intimately, will long remember them for their capacity for work, their high ideals and their sterling qualities.

Class election was in order soon after our return, together with all the cards and smiles that accompany well regulated class campaigns. The political experiences of the previous year were turned to good advantage, and the Peoples Party succeeded in placing genial "Billie" LaPlont in the chair for the year. This year might well be termed the "may, not must" year. Great was the body of legal learning assimilated that year. By looking under Canon III, big subdivision A, little b, you will find a formula by which you can determine the avoirdupois of fifty cents worth of tooth-ache, how to turn a hole in a party wall end for end, as well as many other valuable and practical suggestions. Our Junior Banquet was held in the spring of 1911 at the Griswold in Detroit, with "Butch" Larwill at the head of the table. Several social events occurred during this year; and as we look back, it was perhaps the most pleasant period of our college career. We had become better acquainted with our classmates and professors, and had exchanged the halting tread of a freshman for the care free stride of an upperclassman. However, we were quite ready to go home in June to rehabilitate our shattered nervous systems, and to accumulate a little reserve energy for the much heralded grind of the Senior year.

It is a well established custom that no text-book shall be opened by a senior law until class officers shall have been duly and truly chosen. Senior election day is a critical time. It is then determined whether we guessed correctly in supporting the man we did, and incidentally landed a committee job. This year the primary reform microbe got in its work and the campaign was unusually prolonged. After a political argument to which the Taft-Roosevelt controversy is incomparable, Roscoe Bonisteel, peer of all fat men, was elected president. George Brand and Gilbert Sanders were again elected to their respective offices of secretary and treasurer, which offices they had so faithfully and creditably filled for the past two years. Once more our class was made the subject of experiment, and the altered curriculum, giving less courses and more work, was tried out upon us. Only the faculty know the results. With trembling knees and faltering voices we made our first appearance in Practice Court, and when our first case was ended we felt as if the greater part of the year's work was out of the way. Up to our senior year we had been a bunch of care-free bachelors, but, at about this time, the percentage of white collars and polished shoes materially increased; for a fair co-ed had determined to cast in her lot with us. Also the usual mid-winter crop of engagement announcements was forthcoming, in which the law seniors were well in the lead. 'Twas ever thus. Owing to the fury of the snow storms, our Washington Birthday orator, Governor Osborn, was unable to arrive here in time to deliver his address, and for the first time in many years that annual event was suspended. The Social Committee, however, had provided for us an exceedingly pretty party at Granger's for that evening, and the storm and cold were for a time at least forgotten. And thus we have come at last almost in sight of graduation.

Our sojourn here has witnessed many important changes in the management of our law department. We are the only class that had a prescribed course in Case Study. Senior jury duty was moved from the seniors and placed upon the shoulders of the Freshmen. A thesis was unthought of for us. And during our stay, the Board of Regents chose our Dean to the Presidency of the University, and filled the vacancy in our department by a man and teacher equally as great and influential. With sincere regret we were called upon to witness the end of the teaching career of our friend, Bradley M. Thompson, who, after twenty-three years of service on our law faculty, retired to private life. Moreover ours is the Diamond Jubilee class of this department, a fact that alone would give us some claim to distinction.

The law class of 1912 may well be proud of the achievements of its members about the campus. Once did our basketball team win the department championship, and twice our relay team accomplished the same trick. It has never been decided whether our class relay team of 1911 or the Junior Lit. team of the same year won the relay championship of the University. Three of our men, Thompson, Cole and Picard are wearers of the football "M," and one, Munson, was awarded the "M" in baseball. "Hi" Cole further aided the football fortunes of our university by coaching the All-Fresh team in his senior year. Besides these, Madison, Cunningham, Copper, Morton and Trosper did good work on the varsity reserves. On the track we had Gamble, Reck and Boynton, the former being chosen captain of the Varsity track team in his senior year. Boynton also was chosen Varsity baseball manager. When hockey was introduced into our campus activities, Frank Shaw was chosen as Interdepartment manager. George Brand was appointed departmental manager of the hockey team. Two of our number served at different times as president of the Student Council, namely, Sealby and Davenport. On the rostrum we had such men as Black, Eves and Reck. In music, we had Wuerthner, composer of the entire score of "Awakened Rameses," Picard, writer of lyrics, and Blass, producer of campus hits. In the operas, were Ferguson, McMahon, Humphrey, Fox, Petraski, Kolyn and Ward. In newspaper work, too, were we well represented. W. K. Towers was managing editor of the Michigan Daily, and Dilley acted as business manager of the same. Picard and Shaw acted as university correspondents to the Detroit News and the Detroit Free Press respectively. Dilley and Alcorn produced the Student directory for the two years that it has been in the hands of the Student Board of Publications.

Such in brief is our history. Our race is run, and our record written. We have made our mistakes, and still have a great deal to learn. But in looking back, we do not feel that our time has been ill spent. Whatever of merit and success we may have been vouchsafed to attain, or if any success may attend us in the future, that we gladly dedicate to Michigan. She has given us much, and we at our best will be able to give her but a pitifully small return.

PUBLIC OFFICERS—CONFLICTING CLAIMS TO OFFICE—ADMISSIBILITY OF EVIDENCE.—This was an action prosecuted in the name of the state on relation of one Murch, to try the title of the defendant to the office of handsomest man in a certain graduating class at the University of Michigan. From the record it appears that the defendant was declared duly elected, and that he entered upon said office, and received the benefits and emoluments accruing from the same. Defendant pleaded in justification his election, together with the affidavit of the board of election canvassers attesting such election. To this the state pleaded in abatement, (1) that the ballot used was not in the proper form, and (2) that the defendant possessed none of the qualifications for the office. On issue joined, the trial court refused to admit evidence upon either of these points holding that such questions were not properly raised in an action of this kind. HELD, the ruling of the trial court was correct. State ex. rel. Murch v. Ferguson, (K. & L. 1912), 23 x. 41144.

This case presents many interesting and perplexing problems. With regards to the first objection urged by relator, that the form of the ballot used contravened the statute in such case made and provided in that the offices to be filled were printed upon both sides of the ballot, the court referred to In re Bogel, 1 Fac. 10. In this case the same objection was made to the election of one Thomas A. Bogle as the most popular member of the faculty of a certain department of the University of Michigan, but it was held that inasmuch as the electors had so plainly indicated their choice, the objection would not be considered. Accord: Bonisteel v. Hoyt, 16 S. & R. 1, in which the same question was raised in a contest over the right to the office of shrewdest politician; Metz, Kreuzberger, Cole, Rudy, et. al. v. Tracy, 400 Lbs. 4, which was a contest for heavyweight honors; Genzberger v. Gamble, 5 W. Camp. 234, where plaintiff contested defendant's right to the office of best athlete. With regard to the second objection raised, there is an almost overwhelming line of authorities holding that one chosen to office need have none of the qualifications for the office to which he has been chosen. In Souter v. Middleton, 38 Queen's Bench 748, plaintiff sought to oust defendant from the office of most persistent fusser, and offered in evidence a comparison of his own qualifications with those of the defendant. The court held that such evidence was clearly incompetent. The same rule was adopted in the following cases: In re Jaqua, 1 J. Billings 57, involving an election as class humorist; Towne v. Chastian, 15 Femme 849, involving the title to the office a prettiest girl. A novel case in point is Hinks v. Fox, Humphrey, Martin, Lewis, et. al., 15 Cram. 623. This was a suit in equity in which the chancellor was asked to determine the proper claimant to the office of best student. Defendants, plaintiffs below, offered evidence that Hinks had not purchased a book during his entire college course, and therefore could not possibly lay rightful claim to the office. The court, speaking through Bumpkin, J. says: "He who comes into equity must come with clean hands and an empty head. Away with all law books and all precedent. We are all workers in the vineyard of the law. Go back to the Year Books for if you find a case today, there will be another one overruling it tomorrow. May not the legislature in one day abolish all the legal lore of the ages? Clearly not—precisely." And the court so held. It should be noted, however, that several courts have held contrary to the above, and have considered the matter of qualifications in arriving at the decisions of questions of this kind. Thus in Shaw v. Curtis, 5 Breeze 55, plaintiff was allowed to oust defendant from the office of best bluffer upon showing superior qualifications for that office. And see Towers v. Nelson, 213 Rapp 789, where the office of worst knocker was in dispute.

Many other interesting questions were involved in the trial of the principal case, but objections were not taken to the rulings at the time, and consequently the appellate court had no occasion to review the findings thereon. In the election in question it was at first declared that one Cale had been elected to the office of most popular man; for while every elector had received one vote for this office, the said Cale had received twice that number, i. e. two. It was discovered, however, that the total number of votes cast for this office exceeded by one the total number of qualified voters, and consequently the election was declared void. Two other offices were declared vacant, to-wit, (1) the most promising, and (2), the most hopeless. These offices were in sequence on the ballot, and in every instance the choice of the elector was so carelessly indicated, that it was impossible to determine for which office the candidate had been named. Several questions involved and presented in the election under discussion were not finally passed upon below. Upon these questions, the appellate court instructed the trial court to find as follows upon the retrial of the cause.

Quaere: What were your snap courses?
A. Real Property (1); Deportment; Neatness.

Quaere: Your excuse for existence?
A. None whatever; To keep the Attendance committee busy.

Quaere: What cons have you received?
A. (Privileged communication).

Quaere: How did you come to graduate?
A. Dei Gratia.

Quaere: What have you learned in college?
A. R. stands for Rex; "Ignorance of the law excuseth no man"; "May, not must." (This space was left blank on a great majority of the ballots).

Quaere: What is the best thing in Ann Arbor?
A. Check from home; Friday night; "Joe's."

Quaere: Whom do you envy?
A. Munson and Maxey.

Further it appears that in the election under discussion intervening petitions were introduced signed by Morton, Reck, and Blass, respectively, claiming that they had been elected to every office on the ballot. The appellate court advised, that inasmuch as the only offices not already filled are (1), the jolliest girl; (2), the most popular girl; (3), the first girl to get married, the several petitioners apportion among themselves the offices aforementioned, selection being made by the toss of a coin.

THE DIX PLAN FOR REUNIONS

Up to the date when the 1912 MICHIGANENSIAN went to press, the various senior classes had not met to take any action on this plan. The plan, however has been so uniformly accepted by former classes, and the general opinion of those seniors whose opinion is known has been so favorable, that we reproduce this plan here as originally outlined, trusting it will be of interest and of use to all whose classes may adopt this plan, which will bring about the reunion every five years of four classes that were in college at the same time, the pleasure of which can be casily seen.

History of the 1912 Medical Class

CASE No. 60.

Name: Twelve Medic. Age: 4 years. Nationality: 3-6-1 mixture.

Occupation: None. The Child Labor Law protects us.

Complaint: Comes on account of periodical spasmodic attacks accompanied with more or less distress and apprehension as to the future.

History: The child was unaccompanied by its parents and no history was obtained.

Present Trouble: Began at birth. First attack came on slowly in October, 1908 after receiving the timeworn advice to see the campus for the last time by daylight. Having done this we took a moderate amount of anatomy which with the exception of an occasional slight rise in temper, caused no distress until the end of the first period. Then nervous symptoms began to develop. These were not amenable to treatment and subsided only after the return from that first awful star. In the meantime the pains and discomforts of Histology and Embryology were working in our systems and were relieved only when Dr. Huber with the assistance of that inevitable handkerchief unfolded the mysteries of our development. "Is it clear?" "Hmmm?" Chemistry and Physics were rather superficial lesions when compared with what followed. Late in the year we experienced the beginning of an attack of Lombarditis. It was a nagging sort of affliction and while we met many great men by proxy and learned much of foreign student life, our recovery was a pleasant thing to anticipate. Needing a guiding hand through this illness, thanks to the foresight of an enthusiastic woman, Walter Hoyt was nominated and elected president—and we led like lambs. Owing to our extreme youth we made very slight impression upon the rest of the campus. The bushel had not yet been removed from our light. This first attack gradually passed away after a single spasm in early June, which, while it lasted was severe and some of our numbers passed on.

Everything remained quiescent until the Fall of 1909 when the second attack began. Lombarditis recurred and proved to be a repetition of the indisposition of the previous Spring with the addition of a curved laboratory course. Since moving to the new building, umbrellas are no longer on the "required apparatus" list. About this time we had an acute infection with the Bacillus Novy; and if there is a man in the class today who can't cook beef tea for his family his graduation ought to be postponed. After several convulsions in the early part of February we were attacked by a pathological organism of the most virulent type. This attack was characterized by much distress of mind, rapid rises in temper, choking sensations, aphasia, and weakness in the knees coming on in the first four days of the week. It was during the occurrence of one of these attacks that "Billie Williams" fought bravely to help us retain our childish delusions concerning toads. After every vacation since these attacks began, we have had acute exacerbations directly traceable to the lasting influence of this organism. It was in this year too, that we entered the realm of the Queen and tried in vain to convince Her Royal Highness that all drugs, whose actions were remembered with difficulty, would produce collapse, coma, and death. We also became the friends and fellow travelers of Dr. Vaughan for an interval; and, though we know not today whether we are in the goat pasture or the sheep pasture, we remember that we were once corraled and thus classified. We came through this second attack well, some making a good recovery, a few having relapses; some collapsed and departed. Jack Walch fathered the class through this trying period. We did nothing remarkable although our athletic buds began to burst. We kept a pigskin in the nursery and a baseball mitt.

Hosted by Google

Though a few had suffered pains in the region of Path. Lab. during the summer, they were not serious and in the fall of 1910 the symptoms of our annual attack began to show themselves. With utmost severity we were again infected with the pathological organism, remained in close relation to royalty, met in the previous attack, and had Medicine administered in good sized doses. Many, in the cause of Science did some research work along the line of absent treatment in Surgery. Early in the spring on a very windy day, the most facetious man in the class, "Pop" Fischer, blew in the window of Palmer Ward basement, nearly annihilating the "Medical Man Who Operates," and completely paralyzing the Sophomore class. With growing confidence in our own abilities, under the leadership of Dave Thomas, we came to the end of our Junior year, realizing our value to society in general. We had furnished two great football men in Conklin and "Bill" Edmunds, "Squire" Kerns had shown the other campus athletes a thing or two about pole vaulting, and Jack Walch had starred on the diamond.

With emphysematous chests we have come to our Senior year. The valuable experience of a married man made Fred Loomis a fitting person to take the reins of government. The Medical Society through our influence has become worth while. Our Hour system was put in working order and so remains. We have developed a flock of songsters, as demonstrated at the smoker given the faculty. We won the big football games because Conklin was Captain and he belongs to us. We have startled a faculty unappreciative of our great abilities, by the results of our mid year exams. Recently we had an attack of Jacksonian epilepsy. While the etiology is somewhat obscure it is related to a small-pox epidemic. The interesting feature of the attack was the discovery of the heretofore unrecognized histrionic ability of Collisi. We now have an explanation for his anxiety to "be shown" in "Derm" Clinic.

Now after four attacks very similar in character lasting eight months of each year we come here for examination and diagnosis.

Status Praesens: General inspection shows a husky class with no gross deformities. Nutrition is in keeping with the provision of Ann Arbor boarding houses. Development of panniculus is well represented by "Tubby" Adams. Hands and nails show the results of manicuring during lectures. We have a few specialists. Heads may be a little enlarged but not markedly so. Other features in the head region mostly negative except the tongue, the lesions of this organ being apparent in the double check on "Mike" Manthei and the rapid fire of Mildred Scott. The lips show a varying degree of hirsuteness since the class pictures were taken. Necks are somewhat elastic when a pretty girl appears. Thorax is large, full, swelling with importance. Look at Arty Jones, the assistant in Otology. Hearts have been easy marks if the percentage of married men in the class has any significance. The remainder of the examination is negative.

Diagnosis: Hysteria.

Treatment: Symptomatic as advised by Osler.

Prognosis: Ten years from now if you happen to hear
Of doctors of great renown,
And ask who they are, the answer is clear.
They're '12 Medics from Ann Arbor town.

Senior Medic Statistics

IT is quite certain that this "written" on "Senior Medic Celebrities," was not carried out on the honor system for the results show evidence of fraud, graft, blackmail, copying, frame-ups, and every other form of corruption. Only once was there genuine sincerity; that was in the election of Doctor Parker as the class's most popular Professor.

"Pop" Fisher stands without a peer as the most popular member of the class. Quite a few who were not trying to be humorous voted for Loomis. Dainty, demure, coy, little Miss Anderson is the recipient of the class bouquet as our most popular girl. In electing "Krohn and Stillwell" as the official fussers, the class expresses its heartiest wishes that upon graduation these two worthies may receive their much deserved credits from the Training School.

Miss Gandy, possibly anticipating her likelihood of being elected as the prettiest girl, tried to offset her popularity by raising an unspeakable moustache—but it didn't work. She is our prettiest and most loved lassie. Cleland sits on the throne as the class Adonis. No tribute is more fittingly applied than this and no suspicion arises that anyone was trying to make a name as class humorist.

"Modesty forbids" anyone being honest as to who is the best student. As second choice Burt stands first, probably growing out of his extensive research on the "Application of Straw to the Abdomen as a Hemostatic." The class agrees that the person most likely to disagree on whatever everyone else agrees upon, is Jack Warren, the leader of the Anvil Chorus.

The class athletes, Nynde and Fischer, tried out their prowess in a wrestling bout at the top of the Medical Amphitheatre. The untimely appearance of the professors leaves the superiority of the two still undecided.

The lively, vivacious, spontaneous, ready and constant wit of Groom made him the class humorist with little opposition. Some, perhaps jealous of Groom's overflow of good humor, voted for Stewart.

The man who would come nearest to bluffing the faculty out of a diploma is Crabtree. He has bluffed the class into believing he isn't a bluffer, and at times he bluffs so well that he himself can hardly believe he is bluffing.

Strueber's ability in presenting Psychiatry cases and his pleasing personality, that keeps all his patients in a jovial mood, marks him as our bright and shining light.

The most hopeless student is Stokes, who never studies a minute, never made a recitation, never took a note, never stayed up after 9 P. M., never bought a text-book, never on time,—nothing could be expected of such a person.

If Hugo Miller has his way about it, he will be the first to get married; if he doesn't, Collissi is likely to become dean of this department.

How did we come to graduate? Grace of God and hard work with the stress on the latter. In spite of which however some few have learned other things while in College. One man has learned to blow smoke rings; another the names of all the Sororities; a third has learned the Turkey Trot.

The Boulevard, the Majestic, and the river claim numerous votes as the best things in Ann Arbor. One man evidently filling out his blank after midnight urged that "his bed" was the best thing in Ann Arbor. A straw vote as to the worst thing was unanimously in favor of the Surgery Amphitheatre seats.

As to "cons,"—this is a personal and tender subject. "Don't get familiar."

This class is egotistical enough to envy no one.

The Burning of the Old Medic Building

The unfortunate destruction of the old medical building last summer, will undoubtedly be considered by all as an irreparable loss. On Aug. 12, 1911, a fire of unknown origin broke out on the third floor of the west section of the building. Fifty gallons of gasolene in the basement, made the task of fighting the fire especially dangerous. In addition to this, the water pressure during the early stages of the fire was very weak. A stream of high pressure was finally obtained by resorting to the hydraulic pump in the mechanical laboratory and to the water in the big naval tank, but by this time the fire had gained tremendous headway. All efforts were centered upon preventing the fire from spreading to the basement, the east wing of the building, and the adjoining frame structures of the Surveying Department. This was successfully accomplished with the result that the actual financial loss suffered by the university was very slight.

The old medic building was one of the oldest on the campus, the eastern half having been built in 1850 and the destroyed portion in 1864. Before the erection of the New Medic building, it was used entirely by the medical department for all its purposes and it was not entirely abandoned for class work until two and a half years ago. The fate of this old building has not yet been alsolutely decided but the concensus of opinion indicates that it will undoubtedly soon be torn down and that another old campus landmark will have passed away.

History of the 1912 Dental Class

IN the Fall of 1909, eighty-five men, from all parts of the world, gathered in one of the finest Dental buildings in the country. Having decided to become Doctors of Dental Surgery, we had selected the University of Michigan as the only place to acquire a fit knowledge of the Science of Dentistry.

One week's time brought home a suggestion, mayhap a realization, that we were in new surroundings and under new conditions—perhaps not versant with the ways of those before us. As we wondered over what was to come we were initiated into the art of manipulating beeswax and made acquainted with the appetizing mixture of plaster of paris. Professor Lichty chose this period "to blow" into prominence with his mysterious science of chemistry. Before long we were thoroughly enlightened on the constituents of the Universe. The attention of the class was here called to the gridiron, and too much praise cannot be given to our representatives. For several weeks we fought with the various teams of the various departments until we were finally conceded to have one of the best teams on the campus.

The beginning of the second semester found us assembled under Professor Cole. With him we spent several afternoons a week analyzing his secretly prepared "unknowns." Professor Gomberg was also introduced at this period and under his efficient instruction we learned the numerous and complex combinations in Organic Chemistry. The end of our first year was drawing near when we found ourselves within the walls of the Medical building, listening to the lectures on cells and tissues by Doctor Huber. The quizzing of Doctor De Witt in this subject kept us "on the move." Finally our trunks were packed for our long looked-for vacation.

On returning we found that a few failed to respond to the Junior roll-call. But our class was not materially decreased, for several from other schools had joined our ranks. We then invaded the "Land of Bugs" in Doctor Novy's domain. Finding ourselves immune to his multitude of disease producers, we proceeded to the Anatomical laboratory labeled, "The dead teach the living." For ten hot weeks we carved human flesh and traced arteries, veins, and nerves.

Our important "labs" for the year were over and a class excursion and dinner at Whitmore Lake was decided upon. The day was spent in banqueting, yachting, rowing, and swimming. When it finally came to a close, every man felt that it had been an occasion long to be remembered in future years, a fitting climax to the Junior year.

Our Senior year is here, the days of tedious "labs" are over, and we learn how each of the different courses takes its part in a clearly united whole; each "lab," each lecture, and each quiz having its part in a thoroughly developed scheme. The detailed units of this system we may apply to the cure of different affections but each with the fundamental purpose of helping humanity when suffering. In so far as we succeed we attribute all to our Alma Mater.

Senior Dental Statistics

THREE years ago we gathered from all parts, far and near, to try to fulfill our ambitions for a future vocation. Spending most of our time together in laboratories and in the clinic, we have been brought into close contact with one another. True friendships have sprung up; and in our proximity we have become thoroughly acquainted. Looking back, we can now reflect upon pleasant memories, admire each other's virtues and smile at each other's eccentricities.

Paul Gardner's pleasing personality and his many intimate friendships have no doubt crowned him the most popular man in the class.

Shonered has evidently burned the midnight oil and takes first prize as a student with Bordato, Birkett, Bailey and Kamitani running close for second.

In the subtle art of fussing many have bid for fame, but Denhart can show the greatest number of Interurban Car receipts and is considered in a class by himself as a persistent fusser. Cosper has spent many leisure evenings in various parts of Washtenaw County. Eddie Taylor was nicknamed the "Sorority Kid," and comes by the name honestly.

Denhart shines once more as our handsomest man. In this class Miller and Kuebler cannot be overlooked.

Cosper is easily the most successful bluffer with Foley and Brewer coming next on the list.

The class humorist is Curley Longe. Lopez often says and does things that have brought forth smiles from the most sedate. Our Englishmen, Wotton and Rycroft, have touched our humor with wit from across the pond.

In athletics "Dutch" Herrington showed his worth on the Varsity Gridiron. Frankel, Longe, Sullivan and others upheld the honors of the class with the pigskin in their freshman year.

Dr. Darling's pleasing manner in meeting his classes at eight o'clock has contributed with many other qualifications to make him our most popular professor.

Our best natured are Sweet, Limpert and Locke with honors evenly divided.

Rasmussen our infant son is surely the cutest. Piggie Burg, "our mamma's joy," should also be mentioned.

If there were a vote for a "high flier," McKay would be unanimously elected. Bailey has all the apparatus for flying, but he would lose out in the "high flier" contest, for his side wings never lift him from the ground, though he may go up in the air when he reads this.

To those whose feelings may have been ruffled by our attempt at wit, we call attention to that old couplet,

"Sticks and stones may break my bones,
But names can never hurt me."

History of the 1912 Pharmacy Class

AS the ancient bard has said, "A little man comes out, blows a little trumpet, and goes back in again,"—we look for something new, and lo!—another little man comes out, blows a little trumpet and goes back in again." And so, classes have come and classes have gone. Each in turn stands in the same old line; hears the same old chimes; walks the same old boulevard; eats the same old "grub;" bluffs the same old bluffs; "fusses" the same old way; receives the same old "sheepskin" and then—next!

Some say that history is the biography of great men: others it is a record of crimes, follies and misfortunes. If we accept the first view no history of the Pharmics could be written. None of us lay claims to having been born great; that we have not achieved greatness is continually impressed upon our minds by the powers that be, and the greatness which has been most forcibly thrust upon us has been the greatness of Latin Titles. Necessarily then, we must accept the second point of view, but while we admit the follies and misfortunes, we must as yet protest against the crimes. One of the greatest misfortunes of our career was sustained when "Cobalt" Johnson, the grand old man of Chemistry, retired from active work because of sickness. Although he was our instructor but a short time, yet he had won our good-will and respect, in spite of the fact that the troubles which he handed us in "groups" compelled our daily presence in the "lab," while the more fortunate students of other departments lay with "a book of verse beneath the bough."

What we all consider rare good fortune is, that we should have had Dr. Stevens for a friend and adviser. Although "no man is a hero to his own valet" (and likewise no student is considered seriously by his own insructor), nevertheless, we cannot help but feel that the Doctor has taken more than the ordinary interest and that we have had an "elegant preparation" for the future under his careful guidance.

With few exceptions our freshman year consisted of the usual routine of lectures, recitations, lab. periods and blue books, intermingled now and then with a smoker or two, an evening at Granger's, of course not forgetting the Prescott Club or "Ypsi" in our rush for scholastic honors. Our ability to form a "compound" out of our "elements" was first put to a "test" when we elected Eaton as President.

Soon came the warm weather with its canoe trips down the Huron. Then our annual trip to Detroit where we were royally entertained and incidentally given a glance at the practical side of our work,—a trip which served to establish lasting friendship and material for pleasant recollections. Then those "nerve breaking" finals among which were fifty or more "salts" all of which were easily identified. Each was characterized as a

"white crystaline substance having a slightly saline taste." Shortly after this the most of us could have been seen in the Secretary's office, suit case in hand, depositing a stamped envelope, which was to notify us whether or not we had risen to the dignity of senior.

It was not long before we were again engaged in meeting old friends, classifying and finding new class-rooms. With the advent of the New Year came a new interest in class affairs. The thoughts of former political battles were cast aside as we lighted the pyrotechnichs for our various candidates. When the smoke had cleared away we had elected Seeley as our leader. Soon we found that our work in "Quant" must be "well-weighed" and that a reading knowledge was a necessary accomplishment in "Pharmacog," a subject which was very interesting because of the excellent lectures given by Dean Schlotterbeck.

Although our work is of a confining nature and nearly "incompatible" with athletics and other college activities, nevertheless we expect much from the "bunch" this year under the careful guidance of "Mack."

This could hardly be termed a history unless we were to mention the girls—or rather girl. Though lacking in numbers we feel that this deficiency has been entirely overcome.

Fully appreciating every effort of our faculty to turn out a "complete" and having often been near the "melting pot," yet we cannot help but feel that we are still "short of saturation."

Within a few short weeks the 1912 Pharmacy Class will be disbanded. Though during our college career few of us have distinguished ourselves by brilliant work, yet we do believe that as a class we will uphold the standard of our profession and do nothing to bring disesteem to our department. A few, we hope, will come to take their places among those whose work will help to place our profession on a higher and more scientific and helpful plane and thereby bring credit to their University. ## Senior Pharmic Statistics

IT requires no small space and is a hard task to secure information of the members of our class who have become famous (or infamous) through their deeds or misdeeds. A variation of opinions is offered and each student seemed to be more than willing to testify against his classmates in our last election.

As far as the popularity of our class goes, there is no room for doubt in the minds of all (Pharmics), that it is surpassed by none. For the most popular man as well as the shrewdest politician, Seeley headed the list, while other aspirants were Bostick and Negus. In the contest for the most popular and jolliest girl, Miss Katherine O'Kay was approved by a unanimous vote.

"Andy" Anderson was declared our handsomest man though some facetious person voted for Glover. (Polish your "Specs.") Andy was also in the race for the most persistent fusser but was passed by "Ernie" Hess, who more than deserves consideration in that respect. Everybody seems to have overlooked "Big Time" Fletcher.

Each student was somewhat backward in naming a candidate as the best student, whether through modesty or otherwise, it is hard to conjecture. Our class as a whole is noted for its high brows, but "Bob" Albertson and Hilburn should have our regard as their record has been one continual "shining light" throughout the entire course. One vote was cast for "Loydie" Mitchell—the handwriting looked very familiar. The honors for our best athlete were evenly divided between Albertson and "Perc" Mack. No one doubts "Ed" Negus's ability as a humorist as he never says anything that is not comical and invariably cracks jokes on the most serious occasions.

Bostick has all other contestants faded on the bluffing proposition and won out by a vast majority. This does not signify that he is the only one who resorts to that practice. Most of us have tried it but are usually unable to get away with it. Fletcher and "Sandy" Reynolds were dubbed the most hopeless, and "Dutch" Schuler, the most promising.

The race for the first man to get married is not easily settled by a vote of our class but the first girl to become married could readily be chosen. Yet, some one was pessimistic enough to write, "No possible chance."

In answer to the query, "Who is your favorite professor?" the opinion of the class might be stated as one member voted,—"All of them." The "Tin Pan" course was easily acknowledged our snap course. "What cons have you received?" was answered in various ways, but the general reply was—"Cannot tell definitely until the reports from "Identification" are out.

History of the 1912 Homeopathic Class

INSUFFICIENT space for an adequate sketch of the class of 1912 is not allotted in the year book, nor would we attempt a detailed summation of activities many of which are of great interest, if not acknowledged historical merit. If we might lead the reader through four years of desperate struggle and achievement "we might a tale unfold whose slightest words would harrow up the soul and make his two eyes like stars, start from their spheres." But we would not have you think self praise one of our short comings. We prefer to be the living, not the speaking, example of our excellence.

Other classes coming through the mill of college, have, through weak-heartedness or misfortune dwindled to only a part of their original number. Not so with us, however, for we have grown persistently and courageously, losing none from our ranks, but gaining steadily until we now number twenty-six.

Perhaps the most important event of our Freshman year was the first meeting in the hospital amphitheatre, when we assembled with a wealth of Freshman solemnity and dignity to listen to our Dean. From then on we became greasy grinds, relinquishing our labors only to elect Reynolds president and put forth our efforts toward class organization. The Sophomore year found all of the original sixteen back, some scared by "cons" and "plucks," but all of us here. Oliver succeeded Reynolds to the Presidency and we proceeded to draw closer the ties of organization and friendship. It was here that the Great Big Bill Smith, the man who put "Fredonia on the map," played that big game with Pennsy in his Sophomore year,—and won it. The Junior year was a second reunion with all here. Was it an increased capacity for work or did our application become less arduous and time taking? Suffice it to say that we saw more of each other and the members of the class mixed and entered into the field of class activities. We elected Henry "the man from Canandaigua" and well did he serve.

In this last, our final year, we elected Otis our worthy president. The four years are almost gone. They have brought much beside hard work. There have been tasks to meet and problems to solve and we have been glad for these as well as the gayer hours. We can all feel that the years at Michigan, which are so soon to end, have given us courage and light hearts to meet the difficulties which we may encounter. From the time when we were verdant sixteen, gathered in the hospital amphitheatre to hear the kindly advice of our Dean, there has been exerted an influence which shall reach far beyond the walls of our department and be an eminent factor in making our lives useful and efficient.

Senior Homeop Statistics

RANKLY, the votes compiled from the class statistics show strange variations in choice, except in the cases of a couple of men who voted at least five times. One wished to be the most handsome and the other the most popular man. We should like to be able to make each man happy but faithful to the trust placed in us, it is impossible. As the vote stands for the most popular man, Lucas S. Henry and Alexander Crebbin are tied. Complications arise in that Henry admits that he is handsome and Crebbin in his southern way acknowledges it. We are therefore, unable to pick the winner.

When it comes to a choice of the most popular girl, however, we face an entirely different situation. Miss Arden Estin and "Frankie" Gerls are both in the race but on the final count we must pronounce Frankie Gerls the most popular girl.

The fussers, would-be-fussers, would-be-fussed, and I-would-like-to-have-been-fussed, are all quite diversified. The I-would-like-to-have-been-fussed class included Miss Estin at the end of the Freshman year, but now she has graduated from this group. Also Miss Pewtress and Miss Eidson, for the last two have graduated. The "have-been-fussed" includes Smith first, followed closely by Serio, Coon, Blossom and Roblee. To the classes of "would-be-fussers" and "we-be-fussed" we must assign nearly the remainder of the class.

But to the "fussers" themselves;—it has been falsely rumored that Otis wins "E Z," but such a statement is vehemently denied. Phillip Serio is a real one as is Andy Smith. In fact they are both past the fussing stage and are looking for good locations at the present time. Wyn and Endsley are the most persistent nurse fussers with Blossom a close second. McDermott is going to Texas next year having originated a new variety of the art known as "Fussing via Mail." Roblee is fussing all the time and is still looking for a girl with "class." Henry did fall once for a bunch of red curly locks but repeated attendance at Hobart Guild parties proved too exciting for her. Markham takes the lead in this game, however, it being his favorite athletic sport.

The jolliest girl is Artie True who sleeps fourteen hours out of twenty-four, and always awakens buoyantly. Miss Estin must also be mentioned as she has tried desperately to jolly every man in the class but as she has utterly failed we cannot give her the coveted distinction.

Not alone by the vote does Mr. Andy Smith attain the distinction of being the handsomest man, but if anyone has more bewitching eyes, let him step forth, proclaim himself, and if Andy is there hastily depart. By unanimous consent Stienhauser was appointed Valedictorian while others such as Bein, Blossom, Smith, Grebbin and Naylor "also ran."

Hosted by Google

Otis has been accused of being the worst "Knocker" but he is so badly beaten out by Roblee that he has decided not to contend for the distinction.

In Athletics the 1912 Homeops have faithfully supplied their quota of heroes, and we can point with some pride at Bill Smith, one of the "biggest" M men on the campus. Otis, due, some say to prejudice, failed to make his letter after three years of service on the gridiron, two years of which were spent on the varsity squad. Roblee who was on the scrubs in 1908 and was a terror to the varsity at that time, came back this year and was picked to play the Cornell game at tackle, but owing to a broken ankle received in practice the afternoon the team left for Ithaca he was deprived of his letter. McDermott is an "R" man but was unable to get out his last year. For the past two years the Homeops have won their way into the football semi-finals, securing their numerals the last year by beating out the Senior Medics.

As to bluffers, we have a considerable number, but by far the most successful is Crebbin. To Markham, however must be given the distinction of having the ability to talk more and say less than any other member of the class. Blossom trys to "get by" asking foolish questions but his foot is continually slipping.

Doctors Kinyon, Hinsdale, Meyers and Smith are all favorites but of Dr. Dewey we can make no mention as he has presented nearly all of us with "Cons." But when he finally tells us that we can graduate we class him with the rest of the favorites. Previous to this year our snap courses were in the old school but without exception Dr. Dewey's course is now mentioned for this distinction.

Arthur True is "class visitor" and he comes quite often. Smith and Roblee alternate daily in taking naps upon each other's shoulders. McDermott commonly known as "Toughie" never misses a word of the lectures not even an "of" or "if."

Otis's favorite pastime is watching the Lit girls coming across the campus. Always studious, the favorite haunt of the class according to the ballots is the Hospital and the Duty Rooms.

Some Former Athletics

AS we are to have the celebration of the seventy-fifth Anniversary of the Founding of the University this year, glimpses backward are in order.

One of the early struggles for exercise was in rowing. An eight oared barge was purchased, and dreams were at once spun to beat the world as scullers. It went well until they reached the upper railroad bridge when they got among those beautiful pond lilies, and had to take the boat ashore to turn it around. This was too great a handicap for record-making, as there were no records to beat in turning a boat about on land.

In 1878, as our class entered college, all we found was baseball and football, the latter game played by fifteen men. The field whereon the games were played was the northeast corner of the Campus where are now the Gym., the new Medical and Chemistry buildings. A stockade-like fence was about the Campus, and inside that fortification against cows getting on the field was a row of sturdy little pine trees. These historical trees, planted by President Tappan, served as interesting hazards, as a golfer would say, for the football player carrying the ball. When the big fellows were rushing the ball they would have some smaller ones trying to stop them by hanging about their necks. If there were enough of them thus hanging on to bother the runner he would make for the trees, and try to brush them off on the lower branches. Often times, when a stiff, sharp limb went into the little fellow's eye, or even through his cheek, he would drop off, and the big chap would continue for a touch-down.

These husky fellows evidently learned something about fighting the battles of life, for they have since been successful in brushing off all obstacles in their careers. For example, there was E. A. Christian, who has been for years at the head of the Pontiac Asylum, and is one of the leading Alienists of the world; Harry Ashley, who with his father put through the Ann Arbor Railroad; I. K. Pond, president of the American Architects Association; K. R. Smoot, prominent in the Washington Bar; W. W. Hannen, Detroit's foremost real estate man; Frank E. Baker, U. S. Judge in Chicago; Dr. Chase, one of the makers of Denver; Judge N. W. Haire, the mining authority of the Upper Peninsula; Billy Olcott, the western head of the Rockefeller interests; Judge Mandell of Detroit; and Congressman J. C. McLaughlin.

The genesis of football on the Campus was pure football, as it could not be touched by the hands. All the members of one class played all of the other class, perhaps fifty or seventy on a side. About the only rule was, if you can't kick the ball, kick a shin. Everyone obeyed the rule, in letter and in spirit. Legs were broken, even then.

FIELD DAYS

Commencement week would see a Field day with a 10-mile-walk, hop-step-and-jump, throwing baseball, glass-ball shooting, fencing, wrestling, boxing, six legged race and fat men's race, but catching a greased pig was not regarded as having enough dignity. In 1881 was the first bicycle race. This Field Day was in the Fall and the Rugby Association championed it, while the "Spring Field Day" was under the Athletic Association. As spring had its baseball, and fall its football, there was a bitter feeling between the two. The Athletic Association was the older, but I believe the present Athletic Association grew out of the Rugby one, for football always paid, while baseball was not profitable. Hence the former was the more liable to survive.

A large class in fencing had been formed with Professor Hennequin as coach, forty competing at the Field Day held on the old Fair grounds. The events were run off on the track in front of the grand stand, located about a hundred yards south of where Dr. Peterson's house stands on Hill Street.

THE GYM.

Let us go back to the things which brought about the campaign for the Gymnasium, for now it is hard to see how we got along without it.

For years we hoped the Legislature would have pity on our muscles growing flabby from disuse, but they only said: "Get a buck and saw wood." Like the tramp, we saw the wood. Then we didn't saw the wood. It was for us to work out our own salvation, therefore college organizations began to contribute from their earnings. For instance, the Chronicle, which was the college paper, made a hot campaign in 1881, and turned in to the Gym Fund a thousand dollars from its earnings.

In the fall of 1878 was incorporated the "Athletic Association of the University of Michigan," under the laws of the state. A trust fund was established to be known as the "Gymnasium Fund" with James B. Angell, Thomas M. Cooley, Moses Coit Tyler, Alonzo B. Palmer, Alpheus Felch (Michigan's early Governor and U. S. Senator) and Governor John J. Bagley as Trustees. We doubt if ever an athletic association was started with such a distinguished board. It had as a nest egg $1,028.28.

In November, 1879, all the University, numbering 1500, went to Detroit to witness an exciting tie game of football with Toronto University. In the fall of 1884 was played the only game of the old Rugby style Michigan has ever played. It was at Windsor, Canada, and was almost exactly as described in the boys' classic, "Tom Brown at Rugby." The present day "soccer ball" is much like it.

GREAT HARVARD GAME

As we had a great team in 1883 they decided to invade the East for a stiff schedule, playing Yale one day and Harvard the next day. There were such men playing as Prettyman, the Duffy boys, Killilea, Olcott, and Jaycox. Yale had been surprised and joltèd in her game, so they all went over to see Michigan beat their dear old enemy, Harvard. It was a tie score and getting dark when long runs were happening. Michigan worked the fake play, like the one with which she beat Pennsylvania last Fall, twenty-eight years later. The man who apparently had the ball was tackled by all the Crimson players who piled up on him. In the meantime Prettyman and Killilea carried the ball quickly over the goal line for a touch-down. Even the referee was fooled, for he declared the ball was under the mass, or ought to be there. He made our men bring the ball back from behind the goal and put it in play from where he thought it should have been.

As the signals were rather crude then, the players called to each other for the plays. As they frequently called upon Killilea the Boston populace interpreted the shout as "Kill him," and the Hub papers head-lined the blood-thirsty yells of the ferocious Westerners. The Michigan team, not satisfied with the tie game they felt they had honestly won, challenged the Harvards for another game the next day. However, that night the Cambridge faculty met and with the horrible cries of "Kill him" still ringing in their ears they interdicted football.

This eastern trip showed the members of the team the strong need for a gymnasium, and, under the impulse of the enthusiasm aroused on their return, Mr. Hegeler of La Salle, Ill., gave $2,000.00 for fitting up a temporary gymnasium at the Armory on Huron and Ashley Streets. Such were the real beginnings. How the Waterman Gym came later is another story.

The Penn Game

IT was a dull dark day, that 18th of November, and it had been a dull dark week. Only the Saturday before the team had been defeated by Cornell, Pontius, the big end, could not be in the game, Thompson, who had been counted on more than any other man, had been called away by the death of his brother, an untried man was to do the punting, the lineup was uncertain, the coaches reticent, and the student body gloomy. Over Ferry Field hung a cloud of gloom, about the campus lurked a suspicion of inevitable defeat, enthusiasm was missing, but everywhere was a tense grim feeling of fight, of determination, and of never give up spirit. Despite the seemingly hopeless odds, the old Michigan spirit was there, was in every practice under the electric lights, in every sharp cry of the quarterback, in every weary run to the gym, and was a factor more potent than ever before.

The day broke gray and dull and by noon it was snowing, but still thousands of visitors poured into the city. Special trains, interurban cars, and automobiles emptied an unceasing stream of enthusiasts until by the time of the game, thousands of strangers were parading the streets, defying the snow that swirled about them, and the wind that whipped the banners they carried. The yellow and blue of Michigan showed everywhere; but, here and there, were little groups of the invader's red and blue and delegations of jubilant easterners who saw only victory and revenge for the two former years. It was the big intersectional battle of the season, the meeting of two strong representative teams who counted their success or failure on this one game, who had trained, planned and practiced for this one short hour, and who now awaited the final test. The final touches had been made, the final plays given out, the final instructions whispered, and now the thousands of rooters and enthusiasts impatiently awaited the opening whistle. Hidden away from the turmoil and excitement of the crowds, nervous and yet anxious for the game, were the two teams, the two coaches strangely quiet, the air surcharged with suppressed energy and determination.

Long before the hour of the game the big crowd slowly snaked its way to the bleachers. Loaded with blankets, rugs, and huge coats, they sought their seats pressing against the stiff gale in their enthusiasm, laughing at the small blizzard that raged, and joyously brushing off the snow that covered the bleachers and whitened the field. Soon the stands became but masses of people, showing through the curtain of flying snow in huge blocks of varied colors and faces, flapping pennants and waving arms. Out on to the field trotted the cheer masters and huge waves of sound crashed from the bleachers and reverberated through the valley. The long powerful locomotive of the Wolverines vied with the sharper cry of the Quakers, and the siren screeched and bellowed from ten thousand throats. But there was a difference even in the yells, that of Pennsy, like one already shouting over the victory, that of Michigan, like the hoarse challenge of an animal at bay. The rival bands marched onto the field, the war songs of the two schools were caught up and carried along by the wind. When the Michigan band broke into the Victors the Wolverine stands caught the spirit of the great song and its words rang across the field. The stage was set, the audience awaited the struggle of the gladiators.

The Michigan team trotted onto the field early, but the Penn squad was delayed and the big crowd fumed and fretted over the delay. The moving picture men were hard at work, newspaper photographers were dashing about with huge cameras, cheer leaders were performing antics, and the two teams racing up and down the field in the warming-up. The two Captains, Conklin and Mercer, met and flipped the coin. It was Penn's lucky choice and they chose the advantage of the fifty mile an hour gale. The crowd on the side lines melted. The stands grew strangely silent, a tense line of Michigan warriors crouched in the middle of the field; there was the referee's whistle, the thud of the ball, and the game was on.

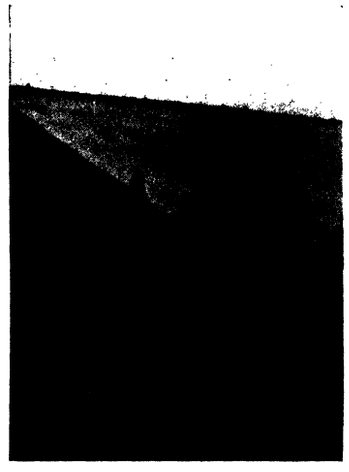
In the first quarter, aided by the wind, the battle was all in Michigan's territory. Down the field came the attack of the easterners, almost irresistible, it seemed. Nearer and nearer the goal they plunged. An onside kick, a quick recovery by Penn and the Michigan goal was crossed. There was a moment of frenzy, then a strange silence, the officials were consulting. Then the Michigan stands cheered as the ball was brought back for holding. Still Pennsy threatened and plunged, and still the Michigan line fought back the plunges and stopped the runs until the whistle told the end of the first quarter. The first attack had failed.

When the second quarter started Michigan had advantage of the wind and started kicking. Down into Penn's territory moved the struggle, and now the Michigan attack was trying to pierce the red and blue line. Slowly the ball worked toward the goal, now driven back, now making a sudden advance, and as the ball moved on, stronger and stronger grew the Michigan yells. Then three straight bucks, a tangled heap that dissolved slowly, a helmet tossed into the air, and the Wolverines stands rocked. Penn had been scored on. Conklin missed the goal but no one seemed to notice it, for Michigan's attack had not failed. Again the battle started, Penn hot for revenge, Michigan seeking more blood. Back into Wolverine territory came the ball, and was almost under the goal posts, when time ended for the first half, and Michigan was leading.

Penn started the second half with a rush that would not be brooked. Led by Mercer, who played like a superman, they plunged through the Michigan defense, they skirted the ends, and worked down the field. A long end run by Mercer, and Penn had scored. A goal kicked by Minds, and Penn was leading. The fourth quarter started and still Penn plunged on. Up the fields into the teeth of the gale they carried the ball. The efforts of the Wolverines seemed useless to stop the powerful attack. Up the field marched the Quakers, and not until the shadow of the goal posts were they stopped. There was a moment's hesitation, then Marshall trotted out from the side lines. He dropped back for a kick, straight into the gale went the ball, and over the Michigan goal posts. Again the Penn stands went wild, and the Michigan cry resumed its sound of sullen defiance.



The dull day was growing to its close, duller than it had dawned. There were but a few minutes left to play, Stan Wells, who had been one of the biggest cogs in the Yost Machine, was out, the team weary, the stands shouting their last cries of challenge. Then the Wolverines roused. Slowly the ball worked toward the Penn goal. Down the field it came, up to the danger mark, and then it was hurled back. Place kicks were useless, only a touch down could win. Darker and darker grew the field, now and then a flurry of snow would show the players like ghosts. Gradually the stands lost their bright colors and took on a somber hue, slowly the timers' watches marked the approach of the end, but still the two teams fought on, Michigan threatening, Penn hurling them back.

Again the ball came near the goal. It was on the thirty-five yard line, third down, and the last chance. The signal rang out, the line shifted, and it seemed an end run formation. The ball was snapped, the stands sank back, for it was a simple play. Conklin came around with the ball, and the rooters saw him smothered under a mass of red and blue jerseys. Then from out of the mass shot the ball, straight into the hands of Jimmy Craig, waiting in the back field. Straight down the unguarded field he shot, straight between the goal posts and over the line. Penn was beaten.

For a moment there was utter silence, then a roar. The Michigan stands rocked and shrieked, hats flew into the air and were carried on by the wind, blankets, rugs, coats, were flapped and waved, the players in the band broke into twenty different tunes, then blended in the Victors and the glorious song rang out to the Heavens. The pent-up emotion of a season burst forth, the gloom and hopelessness of a week gave way to the insane joy of victory. In a few short minutes the game was over, the season's work a failure for Penn, success for Michigan.

The day was still dull and dark, but it seemed bright and cheery. The snow still swirled and eddied but coats were thrown open to the cold, cracked voices defied the wind. Out of the gates poured the mammoth crowd, stiff with cold and fatigue, hoarse, tired, but happy, joyous, and rollicking. They had seen a great game, they had seen a great victory. But it was not so much the single victory, nor the glorious end of the season. Away down in the hearts of the alumni, of the undergraduates, of the strangers was a different thought. Battered by ill luck, weakened by injuries and misfortune, disheartened by defeat and draws, looked upon as a sure loser by the world, Michigan didn't know when it was beaten. But carried along by Michigan nerve, fortified with Michigan grit, made all powerful by Michigan determination, it had proved to the world that it was not beaten, it was still a power, still every inch a champion. # The 1911 Football Season

IT was rather a checkered season, the football year of 1911, marred by defeat, spoiled by tie games, dismal in spots, brilliant in others, and darkened by an unceasing list of injuries and misfortunes. It was a season with an anti-climax, a great finish by the defeat of Penn, a bad ending by the tie game with Nebraska. It was a season that started with brilliant prospects, that gradually slumped until defeat by Cornell seemed the wreck of all hopes, and then jumped to the top again by winning from Pennsylvania. It is a hard season to compute as to its success, and yet a thorough summing up must show it as a success, a fight against odds, and a glorious culmination.

When the first call was sent out for men to report at Whitmore, prospects seemed bright and many predicted a record season for the Maize and Blue. Some men counted on did not return, other new men showed marked ability and gradually the team assumed form. By the time college opened enthusiasm was at a high pitch. Case was, as usual, the first opponent and the tie game of the year before was revenged in a manner that left no room for doubt as to the ability of the Michigan eleven. It was rare form for so early in the season, and gave great promise of bigger things to come. M. A. C. held us scoreless half of the next game but Michigan's weight and open field play won easily, running up 15 points in the last quarter. Ohio State was the last of what might be called the preparatory games, and it was expected that the Ohio aggregation might cause Michigan trouble. But the team ran off plays like clock work and was impregnable on defense. Ohio State was defeated by a comfortable score.

At this stage the team was perhaps in its best condition and, had not injuries and misfortunes intervened, the rest of the games might have resulted differently. Certainly in the next week the quality, and seemingly the ability of the squad, slumped; and the team worked in a disorganized way. Injury after injury occurred. McMillan, Craig, Pontius, Roblee, and many others were hurt; and new men had to be developed for their places. The work of all the training season was undone. Then Vanderbilt, the champions of the South, appeared. The battle that week was a furious one, disappointing to Michigan followers, disheartening to the team. Although Michigan won, eight to nine, the victory was by such a narrow margin and Michigan had shown such poor form, that it could hardly be called a victory. Vanderbilt played a great game and Michigan was lucky to escape as it did.

Despite the redoubled efforts of the coaches and the men, the team slumped, and the following week saw things go from bad to worse. Still more injuries came, and still the form grew poorer. The practice and playing of the team was ragged. Syracuse came and, despite the conditions, Michigan looked for a victory. But Michigan got a tie score and was lucky to get away with that. Outplayed for all but about ten minutes of the game, the Wolverines were forced to be content with a six to six score, and a blot on the record. No plausible excuse can be made for this tie. The Michigan team started the game with a rush, scored, and then seemed content to rest and let Syracuse run all over them. The offense was ragged and ineffectual, the defense weak, and the line wobbly. The men lacked spirit and grit and the playing was far below average. Michigan was probably at the lowest ebb, and the big games but a short week or so away.

THE 1911 FOOTBALL SEASON

With Craig and McMillan unable to play, Pontius and Thompson in bad shape, and the team not up to standard, Cornell was the next opponent. It was the first meeting in a good many years, and both teams were anxious to win. It was one of the big games and rivalry and enthusiasm ran high, Michigan sending a train load of rooters and Cornell making it a big day. Michigan lost, six to nothing, and full credit must be given to Cornell for winning. Although the score came on a blocked kick, and the easterners did not threaten the Michigan goal by their offense, the Wolverines were cleanly defeated. When neither team had been able to gain, the game resolved itself into more or less of a kicking match in which Thompson was not up to form and was bested. The playing of the Wolverines was better than in the past two weeks but not enough to beat Cornell and the first defeat of the season resulted.

Stung perhaps by the defeat, driven on by the never die spirit of Yost and his wonderful ingenuity, Michigan braced, started forward, and the next week attained such form that Pennsylvania was defeated. With Thompson, the "iron man" out of the game, a green man in full back, Pontius on the side lines, and Wells injured, the Michigan team fought as never a team has fought before on Ferry Field, and against odds and misfortunes, won the uphill battle. The winning of that game spelled a season's success to Michigan. It was the big game, the real climax of the season, and despite the defeat by Cornell, despite the tie by Syracuse and the rub by Vanderbilt, Michigan saw only the victory, and counted the season won. The winning of this one game compensated for former defeats, ties, and poor showings; the purpose of the season, as is the purpose of every season, namely to win the big game, was accomplished.

Then came the anti-climax, the Nebraska game. Frankly this game, the scheduling of it, the playing of it, was a mistake from the first. Every football season has but one legitimate finish, the big game. The team is practiced for it, the man are trained for it. To have another contest follow, inevitably means a slump, not only in form, but in condition. Such was the case here. Michigan, on edge for the Penn. game, went stale, they had a long hard journey, there was little rivalry and little interest. The student body here evinced little interest in the game, gave little heed to the result, and paid little attention to the tie game. It was a tie game, for Michigan, out of condition, without the services of Wells, without the same spirit and encouragement that won the Penn. battle, played a listless game and Nebraska, fighting for her biggest game, made the score six to six. This game can hardly be called a part of the schedule, it was apart from the real season, in both training and interest, and the score can hardly be computed against it. It was clearly a false climax, and, as all false finishes result, turned out a fizzle and failure.

Such was the 1911 season, a failure and yet a glorious success. A poor showing, and yet a sudden reversal of form at the time when it was most needed, a continual battle against odds in the shape of injuries and misfortunes, and yet all told, a success. Starting with a rush and then dwindling down to defeat, looked upon as a failure, the team turned, and with the aid of Michigan spirit, and its great coach, turned defeat into victory, failure into success. At times it was discouraged, and disheartened, the form was ragged, the outlook dismal, but when the real test came, it was still there, fighting as only a Michigan team can, making up for former defeats, winning from its greatest rival,—a successful Michigan team.

The All-Fresh Team

FOR the first time since it was re-established, the all-fresh football team tasted its first defeat. The material that Coach Cole had to work with was not up to the general run in quality, and there were few experienced stars in the entire freshman class. The season started with defeats for the baby team but continued hard work and practice finally resulted in victories toward the end of the season, the team showing much better form in the latter part of the year.

The all-fresh team has always been considered more or less of a training school for the varsity and for three years has furnished some of the regular stars who have made Michigan famous. But in past years the amount of material has always been large, while this year almost set a record for its scarcity. The endeavors of Coach Cole are to be highly commended, for, despite the handicap of such material, he worked the squad up into such shape that it eventually made a good showing.

Only five games were scheduled for the youngsters for the season and one of these, the Heidelberg game, was cancelled. An even split resulted, the fresh losing the first two games and taking the last pair. The first game of the season, that with Mt. Union was lost by a six to nothing score, and in the next game, the heavy Adrian College smashed through for fifteen points. In this game, Kellar the star quarter back, had his leg broken. Other injuries disorganized the play of the team and were responsible for the large score.

Bracing up the next week, the youngsters played a great game against Olivet and won by a five to nine score, showing for the first time in the season some excellent form. In the final game of the season the M. A. C. freshman were the opponents, Michigan won easily by a score of eighteen to nothing; thus ending the season in brilliant fashion and making up for the two former defeats. Several of the men on the team will undoubtedly be called to the varsity and are expected to make good after their season in the training school.

The Baseball Season of 1911

THE season of 1911 found eight letter men trying out for berths. Three of these were pitchers of exceptional ability, giving the fans confidence that Michigan would finish an easy winner.

But the team met many obstacles. One of the big factors in putting Michigan near the 600 per cent mark for the season, was "Smiler" Smith's sickness. An attack of ptomaine poisoning, followed by a heavy cold, kept the mound general of the previous year, on the bench most of the time, and robbed him of his characteristic effectiveness. The loss of both Enzenroth and Walch as back-stops was a slight handicap. Possibly the secret of the poor showing was the reversal of form on the part of Hays and Waltner who starred in 1910 with the stick.

Michigan's hitting is the one point to be noted in sizing up the why and wherefore of the season. Of the ten games lost, three were shutouts, Western Reserve, and Syracuse two days in succession, turning that trick on us. In three others we made only one run each, and in six of the ten succumbed by one run. Michigan couldn't hit and it follows, she couldn't win.

Our defense was good. McMillan's inexperience told on his playing some, but under the circumstances, he made a creditable showing. The team was snappy and aggressive, and played better against the formidable opponents than when contesting the weaker teams. We gave Princeton a hard tussle, and would have won but for an untimely error in the outfield netting them three runs. At Brown we earned our single score against Counzelman, the strongest pitcher we met, and presented them their two runs on errors by McMillan and Hill. These two, and the University of Tennessee were probably the classiest aggregations on the schedule. They each nosed us out by a lone extra run, but know that we were hard to beat.

We cannot praise too highly the work of the pitchers,—probably as good a collection as any college had. Verheyen showed nerve and fight to the last ditch when delivering the saliva variety. His offerings were not easily handled and we must credit him with consistent good work. Probably his best day was against Brown, when he was invincible. But the "Dutchman" was not able to stand more than one game in five days, and hence Campbell was forced to work over time on account of Smith's unfitness. "Red" surely "delivered the goods" in great abundance. He pitched the major portion of four games on the Eastern trip, in as many days, and "looked good" all the time. Without him the season would have been absolutely hopeless. Frenz was a hard working pitcher who developed wonderfully in his two seasons but could not be depended on when under fire. Probably Michigan had the best pitching staff last season she has had in years.

A review of the season may fittingly be concluded by commenting upon the help that the "Coach" gave. He was the hardest worker on the squad, kept everybody working to correct this or that mistake, and taught the game from the beginning to the end. He had the "pep" and the head for the team, and without him there would have been no season to write up.

Review of the 1911 Track Season

THE 1907 track team has been considered one of the best if not the best, that has ever represented Michigan in recent years. While the track squad of 1911 did not make the same brilliant showing by winning second place in the Eastern Inter-Collegiate, yet they were able to make a total of 24 points, this but 3 less than the 1907 team. It will be noticed that though this gave Michigan third place in the meet the events in which the points were won were won in much faster time than those of previous years. This would seem to show that the quality of the work done last spring was even superior to that of any former squad. Credit in this is due to Dr. Kraenzlein and the careful and conscientious work of the members of the team.

The Michigan-Syracuse indoor meet held at Syracuse on March 18th, 1911 was won by Syracuse by a score of 43 to 34. The meet like any indoor meet was unsatisfactory in determining the relative merits of the two teams. Captain Horner was the star of the meet, winning four firsts.

The Michigan-Cornell indoor meet held a week later in the Waterman Gymnasium was won by Cornell 38½ points to 33½ points. The meet was seemingly the best that has ever been held in Ann Arbor. While Michigan was defeated the work of Horner, Craig and Hanavan was the feature of the meet. Horner broke the world's record for the indoor shot-put with a put of 48 feet 3 inches. Craig established a new world's record in the forty-yard high hurdles covering the distance in 5½ seconds. Hanavan ran an exceptionally fine race in the mile winning from Berna the inter-collegiate two miler. Hanavan's time for the mile, 4:21 1-5, establishing a new Gymnasium record.

In the Penn relay games Michigan again won second place in the mile relay. The team was composed of Ross, Gamble, Haff and Craig. The unfortunate illness of Haff was, in all probability the cause of Michigan's defeat as at the time of the tryouts a week previous the distance was covered at a speed much better than the time in which it was won. Horner won the shot put and second in the discuss throw. Kohler won third place in each of the same events.

On May 15th Michigan won a decisive dual meet from Syracuse by a score of 85-40 points. Craig again distinguished himself by running the 100-yard dash in 10 seconds and the 220-yard dash in 21 1-5 seconds again equalling the world's record in the latter event.

At the Eastern inter-collegiate meet Michigan finished third with a total of 24 points. Cornell won the meet with a score of 31 points and Yale second with a total of 24½ points. The officials of the meet pronounced it to be the best that has ever been held. When we realized that five records were equalled and three records broken, one a world's record, we have some idea of the ability of the men who won points in the meet. Craig's work was accepted by everyone as the most brilliant. He equalled the world's amateur record of 9 4-5 seconds for the 100-yards dash and again tied his own world's record of 21 1-5 seconds for the 220-yard dash. Ross won fourth in the same event running an excellent race. Horner broke the record for the shot put formerly held by Krueger of Swarthmore with a put of 46 feet 7 1-8 inches. Hanavan won second place in the great mile race in which Jones broke the world's amateur record. Haimbaugh ran a plucky race in the two mile in which Berna of Cornell broke his own intercollegiate record establishing a new one of 9:25 1-5. Haimbaugh won third place, being barely beaten out of second place of Newton of Williams. Gamble and Haff won third and fourth places in the 440-yard dash which was won by Young of Amherst in time that equalled the Inter-collegiate record of 48 4-5 set by Taylor of Pennsylvania in 1907.

The season closed with the election of Hugh Gamble for Captain of the 1912 Team.

Varsity Tennis Team
1911

RALPH NORRINGTON, Captain — PERCY DONOVAN
MORRISON SHAFROTH — JOHN WEBSTER

The tennis season of 1911 was a disappointing one from several points of view. While the team did fairly well, luck broke against the Wolverines in pinches and the weather necessitated the cancellation of several matches. Oberlin was defeated twice, once at Ann Arbor and once in Buckeye Town. Michigan came out only second best in her match with the strong Columbia team, which had previously defeated the best teams of the east. An exciting tie match with Cornell wound up the season.

The hardest blow of all was the graduation of every member of the team. Norrington, Shafroth, Donovan and Webster played their last games, and the 1912 team is composed entirely of green men, as far as intercollegiate playing is concerned.

The Blanket Tax and Ferry Field Improvements

WHEN the class of 1912 returns for its first reunion, five years hence, Ferry field will have an entirely different appearance from that at present. Changes of every description will surprise the returning alumni and will stand forth as a silent tribute to the fact that Michigan can maintain an independent and neutral position in athletics and still survive the regressive measures of the Schoolmasters' League—sometimes called the "Big Eight," or "Western Conference."

These changes will be directly due to the new blanket tax which has been adopted by the Athletic Association, and ratified by the Board of Regents in January. In substance, this tax provides for the addition of five dollars to the annual tuition fee which is paid by the student at the time he enrolls in September. In return, he receives free admission to all indoor and outdoor athletic events, and, as a member of the Athletic Association, is entitled to first call on reserved seats for the large football games.

Women will also be subject to the tax, three of their five dollars going into a "Palmer Field Improvement Fund." If a student refuses to pay this fee, he may petition the Board of Regents for immunity from the ruling. The rule goes into effect October 1, 1912, and after that date all students will be admitted free to all athletic events on either Ferry Field or Palmer Field, or to the games in Waterman gymnasium.

The Board of Regents at the time of adopting the blanket tax, also adopted a set of resolutions encouraging athletics on the part of the student body as a whole. The scheme is but a modification of that used in Cornell, Pennsylvania, and practically all the Eastern schools. This new ruling increases the membership of the Athletic Association from 1,800 to over 5,000, and in order to accommodate the increased attendance at baseball and other games, the plans for building a stadium were drawn up. Another factor that entered into consideration by the Regents and the Athletic Association was the establishing of a permanent Ferry Field improvement fund, for the improvement and maintenance of the University athletic grounds.

The first of the great changes will start next spring. As soon as the frost is well out of the ground, the present south bleacher will be torn down and in its place will be erected a massive stand of steel and reinforced concrete. This will seat ten thousand people, and will cost sixty thousand dollars altogether, or six dollars a seat. The seats will be faced with wood which will go a long way towards removing the chill, that accompanies plain concrete. The other stands will not be touched until their period of usefulness is over.

The west stand has experienced very little wear and tear and should be good for another ten years. The same may be said of the huge north bleacher. When these have fallen into a condition which will make it unprofitable and dangerous to do any further repairing, they will be torn down and the concrete structure continued around the west and north sides of the field. Another bleacher will be erected to take care of the increased attendance at future baseball games. This will be the south stand of the gridiron rebuilt. When completed, Michigan will possess a finer ball park than any college in the country.

The buying of additional ground to provide for minor sports, is another feature of the Athletic Association's program. The Golf club property is impracticable for this purpose but some neighboring field will be secured. This new lot, consisting of thirty acres or more, will be given over entirely to inter-class activity which the association hopes to raise to a higher plane than ever before. The new property will be surrounded by a wall, similar to that around Ferry field and will probably be known by the same name. Here will be furnished additional baseball diamonds and gridirons, tennis courts, and in winter hockey pens.

It is the aim of the athletic authorities to change the tendency regarding athletics into which most of the universities have fallen. From henceforth the slogan is "The greatest good for the greatest number." Everyone will be encouraged to take up some form of outdoor sport and participate in it through the years of his attendance at college.

This change of policy, on the part of the Athletic Association, cannot but result favorably to the Varsity as well. With hundreds more interested, and actively working in various branches of sports, there will be available more material for the Varsity teams. While primarily for the good of the entire student body, it must in the end work favorably for the University as well.

Inter-Department Hockey

AFTER the close of the 1911 football season and before a call had been given for basketball and track men, two months of cold bracing weather intervened. With nothing to break the monotony in the field of sport except post-mortem talks on the departed season and expressions of hope for the one to come, it would have been a dismal period of time had it not been for the Inter-department Hockey Series.

With the advent of cold weather and the yearning of red blooded students for skates and the smooth surface of a frozen lake; came forth a formidable band of hockey players who, in their native states have chased the puck over many of the lakes and rivers on the chilly side of Mason and Dixon's line. They appeared from every department, eager to grasp the curved stick again and skim the ice on swift, steel runners. With such an array as they presented, it was only natural that this the most popular of winter sports, should receive sufficient impetus to give it a foothold in Ann Arbor, and that it has thrived and has found a place is evidenced by the enthusiasm displayed and the interest aroused during the short season.

Looking on it rather as a venture at first, it was deemed advisable not to attempt to secure teams from each class in the university, and it was decided to form department, instead of class teams. The managers had no difficulty in placing in the field a goodly body of players, and with a smoothness, noticeable for the absence of petty obstacles, the Inter-department Hockey Series was launched on the evening of January 11.

Then began a series of contests, in themselves capable of arousing sincere department rivalry and of attracting large crowds of supporters and spectators to the rinks, and which gave promise of greater things to come next season. Stars of the hockey stick and bounding puck were discovered who, banded together under the Maize and Blue would have no cause to fear the famed sevens of the Eastern colleges.

The Athletic Association, with a little labor and expense, converted the tennis courts at Ferry Field into a serviceable ice rink which afforded an excellent place for practice. On account of conflicting classes, it was found necessary to play the majority of the games scheduled at night, and a soundly constructed and well illuminated pen was placed on Weinberg's rink by the proprietor. An ideal place was thus given to the devotees to play off the schedule.

Three teams representing the Literary, Law, and Engineering departments and a fourth composed of Medics, Homeops, Dents, and Pharmics (the Science team), took part in the series, each team meeting each of the other teams in two games in the twelve game schedule. Their standing was determined and kept on a percentage basis and the close of the season saw the Lits leading the race by a safe margin. To them the inter-department championship was given, and to the players the Hockey insignia was presented by the Athletic Association.

The "Champs," having mastered the fine points of the game, played consistently throughout, and they may feel justly proud of their victory. The engineers who finished second, were presented jerseys and the insignia by their department, having led the trophy winners a merry chase until the end, and their team contains men who know the game and play it well. The laws and "Scientists" fought hard and maintained their own in the race until the last few games of the schedule, but finally succumbed to the superior speed and team work of the victorious Lits.

Encouraged by the success of the 1911-'12 season, prospects are bright for a continuance of the spirit and interest aroused, and a greater zest will mark the entering of the teams into the contest next year. Michigan weather is such that sufficiently consistent cold weather can be relied upon for furnishing the necessary supply of ice and Michigan will continue to supply the men who will make use of it while it is here. # The Second Annual Field Day

PRIOR to 1909, the women of the University had no field for outdoor recreation, but this was remedied by the late ex-regent Peter White, who, in the Spring of 1905 made a gift of $1500 towards an athletic field for the women. The Woman's League took up the plan, purchased a part of the present field which was formerly known as "Sleepy Hollow" and dedicated it in the Spring of 1909. By the means of candy sales, band dances, Valentine parties, and skating carnivals, the huge mortgage was reduced little by little. But it still remained for the Woman's League to do a large part of the work. In 1910 Myrtle White, a Senior of that year was sent by the League to Detroit, Houghton and Chicago to solicit subscriptions; as a result of Miss White's efforts the field was not only cleared of the mortgage but additional funds were raised for enlarging the field. A donation of $3000 was received from ex-senator Palmer of Detroit and it was decided to call the field Palmer Field in appreciation of the gift. The ground was deeded to the Board of Regents who equipped a club house and made Sleepy Hollow a girl's athletic field. To do honor to the occasion the girls in the spring of 1910 had a large celebration which included the installation of the new league officers, and the first field day for the women of the university. The success of this celebration and the great interest which was taken in out-door athletics led to the establishment of Field Day as an annual event, looked forward to, with great interest and enthusiasm.

In 1911 the second Field Day celebration was held and the finals in the athletic sports were played on that day. Catherine Mackay, the sophomore tennis representative, defeated the players from the other classes and won the high honor of tennis champion of the girls. A very exciting hockey match was played between the freshman team and a team picked from the upper classes. The contest was spirited and a hard fought victory was finally won by the upper class men. The archery contest was one of the most picturesque and interesting of the events, because of the number and rivalry of the contestants and their excellent marksmanship.

After the field events came a basket picnic which lasted until dusk. After this each one of the four classes gave a "stunt." The seniors in cap and gown marched around the field doing many intricate figures and ending in a splendidly formed "M." The juniors in white dresses gave a rose dance which was extremely effective. The sophomores gave a May Pole dance; and the freshmen deserve great credit for their folk dance which was by far the most ambitious and finished of all the stunts

When it was quite dark a huge bonfire was built, around which the girls gathered, witnessed the installation of the new Woman's League officers, heard many enthusiastic speeches, and sang Michigan songs.

The day closed with the most striking feature of the whole occasion. All of the girls in white dresses, each one having a lighted Japanese lantern, formed in line and marched two abreast from Palmer Field to Barbour Gymnasium. All joined in declaring that the day had been a splendid success worthy of being repeated and above all worthy of Michigan.

Organizations

ON February 28th, 1911, the University Senate passed regulations concerning the classification of various campus organizations. In consideration of the so-called "honor societies," action was taken as follows: first, only those societies may be designated as "honor societies" in which the preliminary qualifications for membership is excellence in scholarship; second, election to membership must be either from a list of students originally nominated by some organized body of members of the faculty, or from a list nominated by the students themselves, but officially approved by the faculty; third, no society may class itself as an honor society without consent of the committee on non-athletic organizations; finally for purposes of publication in the MICHIGANENSIAN, every honor society must make a statement of its qualifications for membership. The following honor societies were recognized by the senate: Phi Beta Kappa (Literary), Theta Kappa Nu (Law), Sigma Xi (Scientific), Tau Beta Pi (Engineering), Alpha Omega Alpha (Medical), Phi Lambda Upsilon (Chemistry)

The various campus organizations have been classified into nine general headings depending on the character and purposes of the organization. The following is the classification as it appears in this year's MICHIGANENSIAN: (1) General University organizations, (2) Honor Societies, (3) Campus Societies, (4) Press Organizations, (5) Debating Societies, (6) Literary and Scientific Societies, (7) Musical and Dramatic Societies, (8) Social Organizations, (9) Sectional Clubs.

The first section consists of General University Organizations under which are the Michigan Union, the Student Council, the Woman's League, and the Forestry Club.

Under the third section of the classification come such societies as Michigamua, Vulcans, Barristers and Toastmasters which, although primarily social in character, deal with departmental and campus problems.

Under Press Organizations are listed the various campus publications, THE MICHIGANENSIAN, Michigan Daily, Law Review, Technic, Gargoyle, and Student Directory. Under this head is also found the National-Journalistic fraternity of Sigma Delta Chi, whose membership consists of students prominently identified with the student publications.

The 1912 MICHIGANENSIAN has devoted a new section to the "Platform" which includes the debating teams and societies. Under this head have been included Delta Sigma Rho the national debating fraternity whose membership is limited to students who have participated in inter-collegiate debating or oratorical contests.

Among the numerous Literary and Scientific Societies are found Quadrangle, Acolytes, Engineering Society, the Commerce Club and other organizations concerned primarily with departmental and vocational subjects.

The Musical and Drama section, in addition to the old organizations includes the Mimes, the new Opera club which will concern itself with the production of Michigan Union Operas.

Social Organizations and Sectional Clubs complete the classification. The Sectional Clubs are published in accordance with the plan observed in former years.

The great number and varied character of University Organizations have made the foregoing classifications necessary; and while it is not to be expected that the designations given are in all cases pertinent, yet it is believed that the classification is fairly indicative of the status of the organizations therein represented.

The Michigan Union

MICHIGAN is ready for the $1,000,000 Michigan Union clubhouse. What has in past years years been an ideal, an almost hopeless vision of the dreamer has been reached in our development as a practicable probability. The spirit of Unionism, in much that the name implies, has developed through the support of faculty, students and alumni. To make proper manifestation of this spirit and further its growth, we must have an adequate home and working basis. The greater, more efficient, more elaborate, more highly organized and more material Michigan Union, which was once a dream, is now a practical necessity.

Upon the eve of the campaign that is to be launched among alumni to make possible the perfect Union, this showing is gratifying, it is unanswerable if given its full importance. The success of the campaign is all important. Its meaning is potent. The Union is either to be all that its sincerest supporters have labored to make it or it is to continue to be an organization so hampered and curtailed that it will be but half-effective. For the work that the Union has set out to do, this would be deplorable, it would be even more. To anyone in close touch with the situation it is very evident that the Union must either be for all Michigan men, whatever their creed, station or rank, or else fail in its primary purpose. If there is to be a unification of the male portion of the student body they must be brought together in one building in social unity, not once or twice during the university session, but many times and upon the basis of equality. That social unity, membership in the Union will afford. The Union is growing, that has been demonstrated by experience, but it is just as necessary that its equipment and means of entertainment grow correspondingly. This growth is expressed in the proposed $1,000,000 clubhouse.

With a membership of 1300 in 1911, the Michigan Union, numbering but a few years ago low in the hundreds, has come to be the most important student organization on the campus, and rightly. The quarters that were provided in 1903 and for the conditions in 1903, have been far from adequate in 1911. The efforts of the organization to meet the demands of its trebled membership have been all but pitiful. Attempts to house the activities and functions that have naturally come under its direction have been futile in the cramped quarters of the old Cooley home.

The inadequacy of the present conditions has been proven, beyond doubt, upon numerous occasions, but one incident stands forth predominantly. At the time of the annual "open house" given by the Union at the beginning of the first semester to the entire male portion of the student body, it was estimated that three hundred members were compelled to wait their turn outside the clubhouse to go through the receiving line. In preparation, the entire clubhouse had been thrown open to accommodate the guests, every bit of space, upstairs and downstairs, had been utilized, but still there was a waiting line, numbering in the hundreds.

Another example of the popularity of the Union and the earnest, though futile efforts of the officials to meet the circumstances, is plainly shown in the series of monthly membership dinners that have been given by the Union during the year. Because of the lack of space but seventy-five guests can be served in the largest dining room in the clubhouse at the same time. For this reason the attendance of the dinners has been limited to the above number. Upon every occasion the full quota of tickets have been disposed of three or four days before the dates set for the dinners. This is but indicative of the general interest that is shown in the Union by the students. These dinners are perhaps more within the sphere of the Union than any of its other activities. At these times, it is more than at any other, fulfilling the real mission of a union of Michigan men. Faculty men are thrown into direct contact with the students, the fraternity man with the independent, the engineer with the law and so on. Probably the broadest and most practical men on the university faculty have talked at these dinners. The presidents of the various classes have served as toastmasters and the guests have further been entertained by students with musical and vocal ability. And still only seventy-five men can be taken care of at each dinner.

Statistics that point to but one conclusion have been gathered in regard to the usefulness of the clubhouse during the first semester of the past year. Eighty-four organizations met at the Union on different occasions for banquets and smokers. A number of these dates were filled by class dinners under the plan allowed by the Union of giving a series of five dinners at $2.00 a plate for the whole series. The privilege was extended to other campus organizations and was taken advantage of by such organizations as the Michigan Daily, the Commerce club, Web and Flange, and Tau Beta Pi. Three thousand two hundred and seventy-one banqueters were served and seven thousand nine hundred and eighty-eight dinners were served in the dining rooms during the first semester. The receipts from the grill and the tobacco and candy counter will aggregate well over two thousand dollars, for the same length of time. During the year 1910-11 the entire receipts of the combined departments of the Union were about ten thousand dollars.

Where the present clubhouse is lacking, the new one will be complete. Large dining halls, small dining rooms, cozy corners, assembly and dance hall, billiard and pool tables and commodious lounging and reading rooms have been planned which will take care of every need of the student. For many it will be a home, in the truest sense, much more than a mere club or a loafing place. When this proposed building is a reality, the Union will be in a position to house adequately all the activities that go with it.

And so the time is ripe for a new and greater Michigan Union. Students, faculty and alumni have been educated to it and have accepted it as one of the necessities of college life. Practically every student organization and society has, at one time or another, contributed to the cause of the Union or expressed in no uncertain terms its interest in the welfare of the club. Some have given money, others time, and work. In the council rooms of the secret societies, the Union has been the chief topic. All have suggested improvements and many have taken it upon themselves to see the suggestions carried out. The students have done their part for the proposed clubhouse, and now it devolves upon the alumni to furnish means.

That the alumni are satisfied and that the funds, totaling $1,000,000 will be easily secured for the Union, is a settled fact according to expressions of opinions by the alumni themselves. Judge Robert F. Thompson, '93L of Canandaigua, N. Y., the principle speaker at the Football smoker given by the Union to the 1911 team, is without doubt a safe criterion in gauging alumni opinion. "No man, who has red blood in his veins, can resist the appeal of an organization such as the Michigan Union" he said in the course of his address. "It's a wonderful story, much like a fairy tale. In the old days there was no organization that had for its ideal the awakening in the hearts of the more affluent, a sense of fellowship and friendship for the man who wore 'red flannel shirts and Prince Albert coats.' There were many of this type then and there are just as many now, expressed in somewhat different manner to be sure. But the all important point is that they are here and that they need as much as ever the social and human fellowship that is the due of every human in a democracy, but is often denied by narrow and bigoted prejudices. You undergraduates, give unstinted your moral and physical support towards this grand undertaking and you will have the $1,000,000."

The Forestry School

SURVEY of the Forestry School at this time should be more properly retrospective; a summation of what it has attained under the leadership of Professor Filibert Roth, rather than a prophecy of what the future may hold. It is far more pleasurable to look about us, upon the "arduous greatness of things achieved" than to attempt to peer through the clouds of dark uncertainty into the dim possibility of what may be accomplished. The resignation of Professor Roth from the head of the school has come at a critical period in its growth. Not only are we deprived of the calm advice and genial wit of a teacher and friend but the University loses a progressive manager whose unrelinquishing efforts have made the Michigan Forestry Department a power among the schools of our country. The vital loss sustained, when Professor Roth accepts the position of head of the forestry school at Cornell University, is augmented by the resignation of Professor Walter Mulford, who has left us to accept a position at the same school, and Assistant Professor Hill's acceptance of a commercial position. But much has been accomplished while these men were with us. When Professor Filibert Roth assumed charge of the newly established Forestry School in 1903, there were nine forestry students,—classes were conducted in a small room in West Hall. Now in the ninth year of its existence there are over one hundred and fifty students enrolled for forestry work and not a school in the country can point with greater pride to the integrity and sterling worth of its men in the field. We of the class of 1912 have witnessed many changes for the better through the addition of class rooms and laboratory space. These improvements have culminated in the removal of the department headquarters and library to the new Engineering Building, the earlier part of this year, and the opening of an adequate wood technology laboratory in the Economics building. A small green-house in connection with the latter, and now in the course of erection, will greatly enhance the facilities for experimentation in silviculture. At the present time we are equipped with more and better apparatus than ever before. These are only beginnings, however, and in a short time we hope to have a building of our own with equipment which will complement the size and reputation of the school. Three miles west of Ann Arbor is situated the Saginaw Forest Farm, a gift of the late Regent Hill. It is already stocked with some very interesting experimental stands of young timber in which we have a particular interest, since each of us has had more or less to do with their planting and progress. Third Sister Lake, which occupies the center of the "Farm," is the scene of many of our jollifications, which leads to a brief mention of another side of our life at Michigan.

Hosted by Google

Our social activities are organized under the direction of the Forestry Club, which, headed by capable and energetic men gives us something to think about when we are not writing up the inevitable reports or "doping up" "Yr" and "Se." What one of us can ever forget the business meetings where unseconded motions were passed with cheerful unanimity, because we were all too nearly of one mind (?) to require a negative vote; and the smokers, where we sat under the magic of the homely corncob and listened to sage advice and stores of brilliant wit displayed by worthy members of the engineering and literary faculties, each vying with the other to tell the biggest joke (on the other). And can any of us forget how we laughed until the tears ran down our cheeks when, to close the evening, "Daddy" would give us jokes from his famous "joke book," itself the best joke of them all, interspersed with spicy bits from his own experiences in the field and abroad, and frequent allusions to the "good work" of "our splendid committee."

Then the camp fire in the fall; will any of us ever forget that first occasion when we tried to build a "cookable fire," broil steak, flip flapjacks and make coffee in the dark, and finally end up by munching the crackers and chocolate in our pockets while "Lindy" posed us for a picture and "Daddy" boosted our pride with tales of how the school was growing.

Then in the Spring time the Field Day at the "Farm"; can we ever efface from our memories the pictures of this memorable event? Dear old "Prexy" Angell sat with "Daddy" Roth in the shade, both laughing as they swapped stories like two boys. The rest of the faculty and their wives wandered about among the tents catching glimpses of "real" camp life, and wondering at the dexterity with which "Fay" packed the ever patient camp mule and swung off down the hill at the head of the "Pack Train." The doctor gave us his illustrated talk on "First Aid," and last but not least of our pleasures was the"grub line" to the barbecued beef, luscious beans and steaming coffee served up by the master cooks, Cronk and Morrell. Then there was "Alaska Hank" Pottinger's demonstration of panning gold with the real article, amid the bantering sentiments of the crowd that he would lose his "stake." In the afternoon there was swimming, canoe races, and shooting contests under the warmth of the early spring sun, and finally, the evenings when we sat under the stars, contented; seeing in the embers of the dying fire the days when we too should be out in the "works" fighting our way to the top, side by side with the men who had gone before. Truly nothing can deprive us of the pleasures of these memories and the friendships and associations that go with them.

It is regrettable that we must leave the school at such a critical time, when she has almost reached the goal of attainment. Yet we must remember that we are "Daddy" Roth's last Michigan boys and that we have an obvious duty to perform as we emulate his teachings and enthusiasm. Whatever happens let us unite in wishing "Daddy" God speed and much success in his work. We know that he is going back among old friends and associates, and that he will make many more new ones there, as here. And to old Michigan, as we leave her, we also bid God speed, with the firm trust that in spite of dangers and difficulties, another leader like our old friend will come to her, and a new star of destiny arise to shed its strong and comforting light over the pathway of the Michigan Forest School.

"The Society of the Sigma Xi elects only Faculty members, graduate students, and senior undergraduate students, engaged in the study of sciences. Elections are made by the Faculty and graduate members, on the basis of achievement or aptitude in original scientific research. Undergraduates are elected only in the second semester of the senior year, and in number not exceeding one-tenth of those eligible. All senior students enrolled in the Departments of Engineering and of Medicine and Surgery are eligible; also, those senior students in the Department of Literature, Science and the Arts, who have taken at least one-half of their work during the last two years, in the physical, biological, or mathematical sciences."

The undergraduate section is a self-perpetuating body, elections being held at the ends of each semester from lists approved by the faculty section. Scholarship is held to be the most important qualification, although individuality, originality, and moral character are also considered. The constitution provides for the election one-sixth of any graduating class, but precedent has limited the membership in the Michigan Chapter to one-tenth, one-half of whom may be elected from the Junior class at the end of the second semester.

Varsity Gets Hard Blow On Eve of Big Battle

"CLEAN THE RUST FROM YOUR PIPES"

WILL BE ASKED TO VOTE THREE AMENDMENTS

WITH the opening of the school year 1911-1912 The Michigan Daily celebrated its twenty-first birthday and entered upon its twenty-second year of existence. The beginning of its twenty-second year of service as the campus newspaper was marked by an increase in the size of the paper and an improvement of its facilities. From five columns the paper grew to six, and two inches was added to the length. The adoption of a soft finished newspaper stock and the installation of a newspaper linotype with black-face headings altered the general appearance. A third room was opened and added to the offices.

The paper was founded in 1890 with the title U. of M. Daily, which was a four column paper thirteen inches in length.

The Year in Oratory and Debate

THE record of Michigan in oratory and debate for the year 1911-1912 though not a victorious one throughout, is yet highly creditable.

The twenty-first annual contest of the Northern Oratorical League was held at Ann Arbor, Michigan, May 5th, 1911, under the auspices of the University of Michigan. The University was represented by John Gutknecht as orator and Frank Lawrence Stephan as alternate. The subject of Mr. Gutknecht's oration was "Politics and the College Man." All the universities were strongly represented in the contest. Mr. Gutknecht spoke first on the program and delivered his oration with fine feeling and effectiveness, but failed to win the contest. First honors were awarded to Northwestern University and second to the University of Wisconsin.

The third annual contest of the Michigan Peace Oratorical Association was held at Hillsdale, Michigan, under the auspices of Hillsdale College, March 24, 1911. The University was represented in this contest by Glenn Dunn Kelly, with an oration on "The Parliament of Man." Mr. Kelly spoke well but lost the contest by one point to the representative of Albion College, who also won the National Peace contest at Baltimore, in May, 1911.

But it is in debating that Michigan has shown distinct superiority over her rivals. The question chosen by the Central Debating League for the triangular debates this year was as follows: "Resolved, that the recall should be adopted for all elective state and municipal officers, excepting judges."

Michigan's affirmative team met Northwestern University at Ann Arbor, January 19, 1912. The University was represented by Robert J. Curry, John Gutknecht, and Benjamin H. Reck, with Karl J. Mohr as alternate. The debate was well sustained on both sides and proved a very interesting contest. The decision was two to one in favor of Michigan.

The negative team which met the University of Chicago, at Chicago, on the same night, was composed of Reginald A. Collins, George A. Cram, and Rowland W. Fixel, with Sylvan S. Grosner as alternate. The debate was hotly contested from the first. The Michigan men were better prepared and were keener in rebuttal than their opponents. The decision of the judges was unanimous for Michigan. As Michigan won both her debates there is no doubt about her championship for this year.

In the twenty-one contests of the Northern Oratorical League Michigan has won nine first honors, two seconds and four thirds, against six other western universities, more than twice as many honors as any one of her competitors. Michigan won seven of the first eight contests, six of them in succession, a record unexcelled in such contests.

The University has taken part in forty intercollegiate debates, winning twenty-eight of them. This is her record: Four of the five with Wisconsin, eight of the twelve with Northwestern, three of the four with Minnesota, three of the four with Pennsylvania, and ten of the fifteen with Chicago. Eleven of these debates were won in succession. Of the last sixteen, thirteen have been victories, four in succession with all the judges. Only one debate has been lost by unanimous decision; nineteen have been won by unanimous decision. This is the record among the large universities, both as to the proportion of debates and oratorical contests won, and as to the number of consecutive victories.

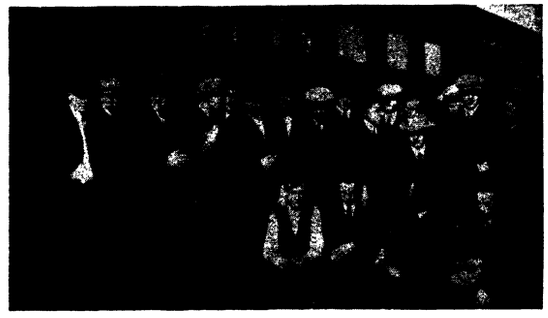
The Christmas Trip of the Musical Clubs to Pacific Coast

T last 11:15 P. M. arrived, the hour for which the crowd at the station had been waiting many weeks in delightful anticipation. A few hasty farewells, several shrill toots of the locomotive and, accompanied by a package of Gargoyles, the Musical Clubs set out for the coast, December 15, 1911.

Suit cases being shoved under the berths, so that people could move about without spoiling someone's 49c worth of laundry, in the shape of a boiled shirt, the conversation began to take a less sacrilegious form. Animated by the occasion, and eager to begin work, Messrs. Trible, Simmons, Metcalf and Westerman practiced their vocal organs by serenading the porter. "Dat sho' am ha'mony," were the words that came from the dusky audience that heard them. "Dat Ol' Kentucky 'Ome, and dat Swanee Riber—Good Lod."

Upon awakening in Chicago, the orders were given to meet in the Dearborn station at 2:30 P. M., and soon all were scattered over the city in search of Christmas presents for the folks at home. All were on time for the west-bound train. "We're off," was the cry as the train pulled out. We had crossed the threshold into the West.

The first concert was given at Chillicothe, Illinois, in a little church before a typical small town audience. That night we pulled out for Chanute, Kansas, stopping on the way at Ottawa where the boys serenaded the crowd at the station. Dr. Lee became so enthusiastic, that he insisted upon giving his "buck-and-wing." A meal at Chanute at 11:00 A. M. revived our spirits, after which witnessed a football game. The concert that night was before a large and enthusiastic audience, which encouraged the boys to do their best work.



Already the snap of the professional "road-company" was beginning to manifest itself, and we lived and moved about in old "3054" with regular system. The next stop was Wellington, Kan. Here the boys visited the general store in search of laundry baskets and pants hangers. Several of the more energetic proposed a basketball game, and the hotel clerk, being a fan, immediately provided for opponents. The score we will not mention, but we will acknowledge that it was the last basketball game on the trip. After the concert at Wellington, we left for Texas.

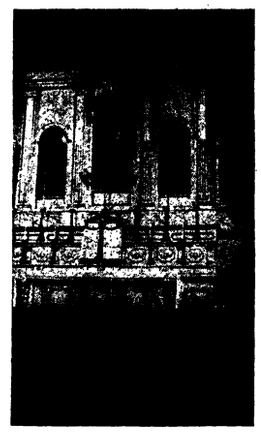
It was a flying trip. Breakfast in Kansas, lunch in Oklahoma, and dinner in Texas.

We arrived in Amarillo on the night of December 19 at a late hour. Here we found ourselves stranded at a railroad station, a mile from the thriving little town. We held another successful concert, and added a new feature to our program — a combination guitar and mouth-organ solo by "Bill" Williams.

December 21, Clovis—at last wet country. The boys went about town visiting roullette wheels and stores, and many $4,000 blankets were bought. (?) Our concert was given in a moving-picture "palace." While chairs were being arranged in the customary semi-circle, some kind person gave permission to play by shouting in a stentorian voice, "Sit down!" After the concert, a dance was given in our honor. The stags at the dance were in the majority and soon moved for adjournment.



At Albuquerque we were met by the Sigma Tau's of the University of New Mexico, who entertained us with a royal banquet and smoker. Most of the fellows spent the next day riding horseback. automobiling, and were much impressed by the climate, the Indians, the Mexican buildings, and the magnificent mountain scenery.

Next morning we awakened early to find ourselves in Gallup, New Mexico. Here there were so many interesting mountains about the town that the boys divided into small exploring parties. The lure of the gaudy navajo blankets was irresistible, and for the rest of the trip the car looked like a tepee. That afternoon our car was taken to some coal mines, where we were given the opportunity of exploring, and of covering ourselves with mud from the coal shaft. We gave our concert in Kitchner's "Op'ry House," over Kitchner's Bar.

The remainder of the evening was spent in sending Christmas telegrams to the ones at home—or to the one elsewhere, before we plowed our way through the snow to the car.

The much anticipated Christmas dinner came to grief for our train was five hours late, and we were forced to content ourselves with figs and peanuts en route to Williams. Upon finally arriving there, we found the varied audience more of a show to us, than we could possibly have been to them. There were Mexicans, Indians, bad-men and mulattos, all mingled together.

At Prescott, Arizona, we were met by the members of Yavapai Club, who entertained us with a dinner before the concert, and a smoker afterwards.

We reached Needles the next night, and got the first real glimpse of California. Here we received the glad tidings from President Hutchins that we were granted a four day's stay in Los Angeles. We left that night coupled to a freight train, and after a bumpy ride over the Mohaje desert reached Barstow. Mr. S. E. Busser, the representative of the Santa Fé met us there and told us that preparations had been made for a trip to the Grand Canyon of Arizona on our return trip. We were up early the next morning in order to see the superb scenery on the descent from San Bernardino to the coast. In Los Angeles lavish entertainments followed one after another. A lunch at the University Club, a trip to Venice and Ocean Park, the wonderful ascent to Mount Lowe, a banquet at the University Club, followed by an informal concert, participation in the "Jonathan Jinks" (the Jonathan Club annual celebration), were but a few of the numerous treats. The Cataline Islands, and the Tournament of Roses at Pasadena were enjoyed by those who were not worn out by the many entertainments furnished by the loyal Michigan alumni.

At Williams we were taken up to the Grand Canyon, thanks to the hospitality of Mr. Busser and the Sante Fé Railroad.

"Ann Arbor," shouted from a Brakie's lips, the morning of January 9, brought the trip to a close. Never before in the history of the clubs, has any trip like this been attempted. Its educational value and the insight into what it means to be a Michigan man, demonstrated by contact with Western alumni, were the two chief benefits to the clubs. But more than this, it was, we believe, a binding tie to the alumni, and a creditable showing to the University. and so far as it accomplished those ends, a benefit to Michigan. J. W. and E. K.

EVERYTHING JUST RIGHT — 717 N. UNIVERSITY AVE.

Oct. 4—First Michigan Daily appears. Union begins Membership campaign. Safe in University hall blown up with nitroglycerine. John Cox appointed chairman of Michigan Union opera following the resignation of Herbie Trix.

Oct. 5—Bill Wasmund, ex-quarter-back is killed in Texas by falling from window. Clues to University safe robbery fail to materialize. Coach Cole calls for Fresh football material and prospects are encouraging.

Oct. 6—Sophomores initiate a few freshmen to the "water-cure" despite official ban on hazing. First Mass meeting in University hall brings out football spirit.

The Detroit Life Insurance Company

which was licensed by the Insurance Department of Michigan, January 14, 1911

During the first year of its existence, the DETROIT LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY wrote $2,200,000 of insurance, the premiums on which totalled, approximately $80,000. This was the result of only the first year's effort.

THE DETROIT LIFE is now writing insurance at the rate of $4,000,000 per annum in Michigan alone, and will soon enter the adjoining states.

The expansion and rapid growth of this Company, affords great opportunities for young men who can combine INDUSTRY with INTELLIGENCE. Young men should be attracted by a young company, and in consequence, a small company. Help to build it, and as you attain age, the Company will also attain age, size and influence, and the builders will be rewarded in the same proportion that their services in its up-building, are valuable.

I invite a personal interview. Let me tell you something of the vast possibilities existing in the Life Insurance business for young men with no capital except good health, good habits, and a trained mind. If a personal interview is inconvenient, correspondence is invited.

Alternating Current Switchboard Indicating Instruments

is offered by this Company, comprising

WATTMETERS, Single and Polyphase, POWER FACTOR METERS, SYNCHROSCOPES FREQUENCY METERS, AMMETERS, VOLTMETERS

New Models of Weston D. C. Instruments to Match

This whole group of instruments embodies the results of several years exhaustive study and scientific investigation of all the complex electrical and mechanical problems involved in the development of durable, reliable, sensitive and accurate instruments for use on alternating current circuits.

Every detail of each of these instruments has been most carefully studied and worked out so as to be sure that each shall fully meet the most exacting requirements of the service for which it is intended. Neither pains nor expense has been spared in the effort to produce instruments having the longest possible life, the best possible scale characteristics, combined with great accuracy under the most violent load fluctuations and also under the many other trying conditions met with in practical work. Every part of each instrument is made strictly to gauge and the design and workmanship and finish is of the highest order of excellence.

We invite the most critical examination of every detail of each member of the group. We also solicit the fullest investigation of the many other novel features and very valuable operative characteristics of these new instruments and request a careful comparison in all these respects with any other make of instrument intended for like service. We offer them as a valuable and permanent contribution to the art of electrical measurement. Their performance in service will be found to justify the claim that no other makes of instruments approach them in fitness for the service required from A. C. Switchboard indicating instruments.

NEXT year, when you are away from the University, will you take time in the hurry and worry of this strenuous life to think of the old University and town where you made preparation for the work you will then be doing?

¶ Will you think of the man who sat next to you in the class-room or at your table at the boarding place? Don't you suppose you will want to know what he is doing?

¶ It will all be in The Alumnus.

From a New York dramatic critic:

"Let me congratulate you upon The Alumnus. I suppose you have some 'kicks' on the magazine, but we who are in the business of making newspapers and magazines, understand the difficulties that attend the job, and I think any fair-minded person will admit The Alumnus is 'bully.'"

From a recent Law graduate:

"I wish The Alumnus might come oftener. I read it all, even the ads. I never realized before how much it meant to the Alumni."

From a '96 Medic in the West:

"The Alumnus is practically my only connection with the University, and when I meet more recent alumni I find I am quite well informed of developments and happenings, of which I would have been entirely ignorant if I did not read The Alumnus."

¶ It will do as much for you. All enthusiastic Michigan men and women are members of the Alumni Association.

One Dollar (special price to Seniors) will make you a Member

(Regular Price One Dollar-Fifty)

¶ If you haven't the money now, leave your name and address and we'll send you a statement next fall. Don't leave Ann Arbor until you have subscribed at the office of

A Word from the Printer

THIS BOOK is the product of a plant built and organized for the one purpose of serving the college and its people. Long experience in this field has enabled it to attain a degree of efficiency far beyond possibility in a general printing establishment. The atmosphere is different. There is a familiarity with the college annual that makes smooth the progress of such a book through every stage of its development.

Here also is the home of over thirty Greek-letter and collegiate publications. The editors' needs are anticipated by men who know them through knowledge of the college life and college things. It is The Collegiate Press, because it is in the hands of college people, working for college people.
